NO. 239—SEVENTIETH YEAR

ONE KILLED AND THREE HURT IN MOTOR CRASH

President Beatty Intimates C.P.R. Contemplates Extension to Peace River

Canadian Pacific Head Indicates Railway Will Enter Peace River Area

Statement Made by Mr. E. W. Beatty at Grande Prairie—With Other Directors Has Been in Territory Looking Over Situation—Significant Forecast

C.P.R., He Suggests, Is Not Easily to Be Excluded From Desired Territory

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta., Sept. 15.—The Canadian Pacific Railway may yet prove to be an important factor in the finding of an ultimate solution of the transportation difficulties of the Peace River country, intimated E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of that company, in the course of a short address to the people of this town here. The occasion was a public reception by the citizens to Mr. Beatty and his party of Canadian Pacific directors and prominent business men from the west who arrived here today on a visit to this part of Canada.

After returning thanks for the reception tendered them, Mr. Beatty stated that the Peace River country was new to most of those who were with him, and all were united by a desire to know the country and its possibilities. They were prepared to be impressed, and he hoped to find out through contact with the people what were the country's prospects and problems.

EVEN UNWITTED
The Canadian Pacific, he said, had direct access to the Peace River country, but while that company was now in the country it should be remembered that it was a very large company and that it had a habit of doing in that territory where it might it ought to be, sometimes in a very unwise manner.

The Canadian Pacific had been this part of Canada acting as the broker and agent for the owners of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and Peace River Railway when the company was at a low ebb, and when there were many difficulties attached to the task of operation. When no else would take the task in hand the Government was not in a position to do so, the Canadian Pacific had been drafted to the task, and it could not be said that it had not done its duty faithfully. During the past two years the Peace River country had been torn to a place in the sun and a very dry one.

If I am able to make a forecast, said in conclusion, "the Canadian Pacific may yet be an important factor in finding an ultimate solution of your transportation difficulties."

(By United Press)

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 15.—With communication still paralyzed, all that was known today of Thursday's hurricane was that it had exacted a heavy toll of life in addition to destroying utterly the tobacco and sugarcane crops on which many of the island population live.

Authorities and volunteers are doing their utmost under Governor Horace M. Towner to restore communication, tabulate a list of the dead, estimate damage and care for the homeless and destitute. There is no communication with the interior. Wires are down, roads are impassable. It is known definitely that the disaster is most complete. San Juan suffered terribly. Hundreds of families are living in public buildings, going by day to survey the ruins of their homes. An emergency omnibus line has been started, as there are no street cars. Electric light service is suspended still. Not only telegraphic, but radio service is difficult because the radio tower was blown down by the storm. Banks are closed, dock warehouses are roofless, the aqueduct is broken, the newspapers cannot be published. The suburb of Laperla has been destroyed completely. Nothing remains but a mass of wreckage. In the port the wreckage is aghast, along with many smaller crafts. The Catherine, due Thursday when the storm broke, has not been reported.

SECESSIONISTS ARGUE CASE BY LATER FIGURES

Farmers in Rural Wards of Saanich Desire Disincorporation Based on School and Other Costs

ANSWER IS FILED TO REEVE CROUCH

Supporters of secession in Saanich have filed with the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council an answer to the memorandum of Reeve Crouch on the question of secession in Wards 5, 6 and part of 4 of the municipality.

On their behalf Messrs. O'Halloran and Harvey submit that the later figures for the municipality's taxation make the case stronger than it was when the petition was first introduced for disincorporation. "The incidence of taxation in the municipality has fallen most heavily and unequally upon the rural areas in the municipality."

The petition is supported by 753 land owners in the area affected representing a valuation of property of $2,759,276, who seek disincorporation.

The memorandum follows:

The reply of Reeve Crouch proves to the hilt the case of the Saanich farmers for secession, and at the same time an analysis of his financial statements reveals some startling figures now given for the first time.

Fire Insurance Rates Reduced in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Sept. 15.—Five per cent reduction in fire insurance rates on mercantile and industrial properties in Vancouver were effected today, it was announced by G. L. Schetky, secretary of the Fire Insurance Agents' Association. Mr. Schetky explained that a 5 per cent surcharge was placed by the British Columbia Fire Underwriters on all mercantile and industrial risks due to inadequacy of the fire department in equipment and men. That surcharge was removed today by reason of the fact that $75,000 worth of equipment, purchased with funds voted by the ratepayers last December, would shortly be placed in operation.

NEW ALTITUDE RECORD

DESSAU, Germany, Sept. 15.—Two world altitude records were claimed today by Pilot Schuenberger, of the Junkers Company, after flights in an airplane of the type of the transatlantic monoplane Bremen. Schuenberger attained altitudes of 25,590 feet with a load of 1,000 kilograms (2,200 pounds) and 28,667 feet with a load of 500 kilograms (1,100 pounds). The plane was equipped with a Bristol Jupiter motor.

Co-Founder of Victoria

SIR George Simpson, who persuaded the Hudson's Bay Company directors in 1841 to move the headquarters of the Pacific Fur Establishment to Southern Vancouver Island, bringing about the founding of the city of Victoria by Sir James Douglas in 1843.

Site of B.C.'s Capital Determined by Action Of Sir George Simpson

WHILE Victoria honors Sir James Douglas as her founder, it is to Sir George Simpson that she owes the favorable report on Vancouver Island as the new base of Hudson's Bay Company operations when the company was forced by political conditions to abandon the Columbia River. This week at Fort Saint James the authorities of British Columbia, in the presence of the present Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, pay honor to the famous head of the establishments in British North America.

WORKERS MOVED NUMBER 50,000

ARMY OF HARVESTERS MOVED TO PRAIRIE IS LARGEST EVER RECORDED

In addition to 8,320 from Britain, 47,225 Come From Other Provinces of Canada

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15.—Nearly 50,000 men have been brought into the West to harvest the huge crop, more than twice as many as were employed last year. This is the biggest single movement of labor ever recorded in Canada or anywhere else in the world.

Practically all of the men were drafted and moved to the harvest fields within a period of two weeks. To this number must be added 15,000 Prairie men regularly employed on farms, bringing the total of workers to 75,000. It is estimated that 40,025 harvesters were brought from Eastern Canada, 8,320 from Great Britain, and 7,300 from British Columbia.

MINERS BETTER THAN EXPECTED

Director of Immigration Says Number Disappointed Much Less Than Was Looked For

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Replying to criticisms made yesterday by miners returning from Canada, J. Bruce Walker, director of European immigration for the Canadian Government, said today that the important feature of the harvesters' return is the fact that so far only seven hundred of the unemployed sent out have indicated their desire to come back to England.

"That," Mr. Walker declared, "is much better than we expected. Those who have observed the movement and know that, except for physical qualities, the men were selected haphazard, expected the return of at least two thousand. Whatever the men who have returned have to say, nearly 8,000 still are employed in the harvest fields."

SCHOOL BOOK ISSUE TAKEN TO MINISTER

Trades and Labor Delegation Presents Views to Hon. J. Hinchliffe on Cost of Present System

FREQUENT CHANGES ARE OBJECTED TO

Minister Fears Any Violent Alteration in Home Work Regulations Would Lead to Difficulty

It was in a spirit of co-operation that a delegation from the local Trades and Labor Council met Hon. J. Hinchliffe yesterday afternoon, and conferred with him for over an hour concerning problems connected with the administration of educational matters in the province. Mr. C. Chivers, who headed the delegation, made it evident at the opening of the proceedings that they were not coming before the Minister of Education in a critical mood.

The minister, in turn, informed the delegation that he had long ago reached the stage where he realized that he did not know everything, and he was anxious to get all the information he could in seeking to discharge the duties of his office.

As he took leave of the delegation he was thanked for giving up his Saturday afternoon to hearing their views and, in turn, Mr. Hinchliffe expressed the hope that at any time that they had any suggestions to offer relative to matters connected with his department, they would feel free to come and present them. He could not promise that he would always agree with them, but he would be glad to hear their views, and would give their suggestions at all times careful consideration.

TEXTBOOK CHANGES

The delegation, which consisted of Mr. Chivers and Messrs. J. Torrance, J. Casey, A. Hodgkinson and W. Pynn, asked for action along the line of reducing the charges upon parents in connection with the attendance of children at school in the direction of making some effort to reduce, if possible, the cost of school books, by either having them printed by the Government, or by the Government buying books in quantity from the publishers, and thus effecting a saving in the cost, and also by less frequent changes in the textbooks used in the schools.

Premier Opens New Westminster Children's Home

NEW WESTMINSTER, Sept. 15.—Crowning six years of effort to obtain a new and modern building, formal opening of the Loyal Protestant Home for Children took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Premier S. P. Tomin and other members of the Cabinet attended the ceremony.

Hon. Dr. Tomin was presented with the key to the new home by E. Evans, Vancouver, architect for the building.

Dr. Tomin congratulated the association upon the magnificent building. He stated that he would be glad to receive any delegation, and assured the association that a request for aid would receive every consideration.

The home, which is located at Eighth Avenue and Sixth Street, occupies a five-acre site.

The mansion of the new home is Miss G. C. B. Skene.

LOADING 1,500 CARS EACH DAY

Prairie Wheat Growers Hauling to Railway at Rate of 5,000,000 Bushels Daily

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15.—With cutting nearly completed and weather conditions continuing favorable for the threshing of crops in Western Canada, the movement of grain is now on a large scale. Not only is the grain moving much earlier than last year, but it is going forward in much larger quantities than when the movement was equally far advanced in 1927.

Wheat receipts are already running 1,500 cars a day, and country elevators are at five million bushels. Of 1,500 cars inspected Friday, 1,000 cars were of the three top grades. The large amount of grain in storage in country elevators is one of the remarkable features of this year's movement. At Canadian National country elevator points there are 1,300,000 bushels in storage as against only 1,200,000 bushels for the same period last year.

Oak Bay Woman Dead Following Smash-Up; Others Are Injured

Mrs. Arthur Portway Victim of Tragedy at Robertson Street and Lillian Road, Where Two Automobiles Collide—Hook Bumpers and One Is Overturned

Ten-Year-Old Daughter and Two Women Friends From Utah Hurt

MRS. Ellen Portway, wife of Mr. C. A. Portway, of 1074 Oliver Street, was killed and three others were injured when a car driven by Mr. Portway collided with one driven by Mrs. George Leonard Martin, of 544 Toronto Street, at the intersection of Robertson Street and Lillian Road at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The injured are Ruth Portway, ten years old, who suffered cuts about the arms; Mrs. Leslie Anderson and Mrs. Cooper Anderson, both of Salt Lake City, the former receiving cuts about the head and the latter being badly bruised.

Mr. Portway was driving north and Mr. Martin east when the two cars collided and hooked bumpers. Mr. Portway's car was dragged in a northerly direction on Robertson Street to the property line where, in parting from the other car, it overturned. Mr. Martin's car was carried twenty feet farther than the property line before being brought to a stop.

SEVEN IN CAR
Besides the driver, there were six people in Mr. Portway's car. They were Mrs. Portway, Ruth Portway, Mrs. Leslie Anderson, Betty Anderson (aged eight years), Mrs. Cooper Anderson and Mrs. Jean Miller, of Aberdeen House. There were no other occupants in Mr. Martin's car.

Constable Robert Ireland and Patrolman Percy Shakespeare were dispatched to the scene in the patrol wagon by Sergeant J. McEllen.

Mrs. Portway, who was killed, was carried to the Victoria Hospital, but she was pronounced extinct by Dr. E. M. Casey, house surgeon. The others injured were given first aid.

Both cars were taken to the police yard, where they will be held pending an investigation. Names of several witnesses of the accident were procured by the police.

Mrs. Portway came to Victoria about eighteen months ago from China, where Mr. Portway had been settled for a number of years. There are three children, a girl aged fifteen and two younger boys. She was nearly fifty years of age, as far as could be learned yesterday.

The remains are at the McCall Funeral Home, pending arrangements for the inquest.

REPUBLICAN FARMERS NOT YET PACIFIED

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 15.—Political trouble in the Northwest wheat belt was reported to Herbert Hoover today by a delegation of Republican leaders from North Dakota. The group, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, told the Republican nominee that the farmers still were smarting under what they felt was a rebuke administered to them in the election of 1924. Nye and the others said they thought the situation could be straightened out by election time if the farmers could be convinced they should not support Tammany. At the same time the candidate received assurances from Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, that the same situation does not hold true of the corn belt. Capper said there was little unrest in his area. The reports gave the candidate the first insight he had had to the attitude of the farmers since he left his Iowa farm conference at Cedar Rapids two weeks ago and set up his headquarters in Washington. "Our farmers seem to think a spanking ought to be administered to the Republican party this year, but I think we will be able to convince them it should not be done at the expense of electing Tammany," Nye said.

CENOTAPH IS CHOSEN SITE

Armistice Period Committee Will Hold Function There on November 11, Tenth Anniversary

SALE OF POPPIES ARRANGED FOR

As Armistice Day falls on a Sunday this year, the veterans' memorial service will be held at the Cenotaph in front of the Parliament Buildings. It was decided at the meeting of the Armistice Period Committee held Friday night at the rooms of the Pro Patria branch of the Canadian Legion. The veterans' parade will fall in early enough up town to march to the Cenotaph, and be in formation in due time to observe the two minutes' silence at 11 o'clock. The service will be of the very shortest, but will be held at the Cenotaph regardless of what the weather conditions may be. The churches will be asked to assemble their congregations a few minutes before 11 o'clock, so that there may be no ringing of church bells at the time of the silence, and so that the congregations may observe the ceremony with due solemnity.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY
The commemoration of Armistice has been occupying a steadily increasing important place in the people's minds during recent years, and on this, the tenth anniversary of the end of warfare, there will be more attention than ever given to the event.

SALE OF POPPIES
At this meeting Mr. A. W. Hood was appointed manager in charge of poppy sales, and Mr. J. Waterston as his assistant. Poppies and wreaths have already been ordered in sufficient quantity to insure that there will be no shortage as on the tag day last year.

The committee wishes to remind the public that Poppy Tag Day is much more than simply a "tag day," being as it is an Empire-wide institution in commemoration of those who fell in the Great War, and to provide partial employment for their disabled comrades who are unfit to compete in the open labor market. Veterans' workshops in Canada have veterans working continuously ten months in the year on poppies and wreaths. All the poppies and wreaths sold in Victoria are made by the local Red Cross Workshop.

COMMITTEE
The Armistice Period Committee is the central body of ex-service men in Victoria, combining representation from every veteran organization in the city. These organizations are: The Amputations' Association, the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, the Canadian Pensioners' Association of the Great War, the Veterans of France Association, and five branches of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, namely: Britannia Branch, British Campaigners' Branch, Naval Veterans' Branch, Pro Patria Branch and Tuberculous Veterans' Branch.

This committee is organized to see to the proper celebration of Armistice, and to make use of funds acquired through the sale of poppies in providing comforts for invalided veterans and emergency relief for ex-service men and their dependents, irrespective of whether they are associated with any veteran organization. Anyone desiring information with regard to the work and activities of the committee may have the same from the honorary secretary, Mr. C. K. Morrison, 723 Fort Street.

STUDEBAKER
President Eight
30,000 miles in 26,326
minutes!

Greatest endurance record in history of transportation

BETWEEN July 21 and August 9, four Studebaker President Eights—all fully equipped, regular factory production cars—triumphed over the severest test ever given any automobile. This 30,000 mile run—a record distance achieved in record time—was conducted under the close and constant supervision of the American Automobile Association which certified each car to be a strictly stock model. In fact, all four motors and chassis were selected, not by Studebaker, but by A. A. A. officials who picked them at random from the assembly line at the Studebaker factory. If not chosen for this test, these regular factory Presidents would have gone out to dealers and you might have bought one of them at any Studebaker showroom.

Average 68 miles per hour

All four Studebakers—two President Eight roadsters and two President Eight sedans—completed 30,000 miles each at better than mile-a-minute speed.

Both roadsters completed 30,000 miles in less than 27,000 minutes, averaging better than 68 miles per hour for 19 days and 18 nights of continuous driving.

The two sedans averaged 63.99 and 64.15 miles per hour respectively for this tremendous distance. The fastest thousand miles of each roadster was the thirtieth—71.67 and 69.65 miles per hour! Studebaker Presidents improve with use.

Engines sealed
Of 6 seals placed on the engines of these roadsters by American Automobile Association officials, not a single seal was broken during the 60,000 miles of running. These official seals were placed on the manifold, engine head and carburetor of each car.

Studebaker's new and exclusive ball bearing spring shackles went through the entire 120,000 miles of running without a single adjustment, without the addition of any lubricant, and were functioning perfectly at the end of the run.

What it proves

The Studebaker President's new record of 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes is a feat unapproached in the history of transportation. It proves beyond doubt or question that The President Eight is an expression of engineering genius without peer in the automotive world. It is evidence of the inexhaustible resources of Studebaker performance—of high quality materials, precision manufacture, skilled workmanship and rigid inspections.

Why be satisfied with less?

You can pay more than Studebaker prices, but in no other car at any price can you buy more stamina or more finely balanced performance than in Studebaker's President Eight. And back of every One-Price Studebaker is 76 years of manufacturing integrity.

OKANAGAN FRUIT GROWERS

As was anticipated from the beginning, the exigencies of economic conditions have made the operations of the Marketing Control Board in British Columbia a failure. Last year control was a partial success because there was a short fruit crop on the American side. This year, with a bumper crop and no anti-dumping regulations enforced by the Federal Government, the British Columbia produce the Okanagan is largely going to waste. Marketing control cannot force its sale on the prairies; about all it can do is to decree a price, or prices, that must be asked, but the consumers are under no obligation to pay if they can obtain cheaper produce from a foreign country. Marketing control implies compulsory co-operation—a term which is self-contradictory—in the realm of political economy is rendered futile by the law of supply and demand.

The 35,000 residents of the Okanagan Valley, for whose benefit marketing control was put into effect, are experiencing heavy losses this year, due to inability to market their crops. They are faced with the condition of seeing fruit grown in the United States shipped into the Prairie provinces, and into British Columbia as well, and sold at prices with which they cannot compete, and most certainly cannot compete with the prices regulated by the Marketing Control Board. No doubt if there was no marketing control and if they were not bound to "compulsory co-operation" they could save something from the wreck of their hopes. As it is their prospects are bad and they have had at least the illustration that, without the operation of the anti-dumping laws, marketing control is valueless. The future of the Okanagan residents who depend on their fruit crops is at stake. From whom is salvation to come if the Federal Government continues to refuse to put anti-dumping duties into effect?

FRAMING AN IDEAL

Few, if any, there are who have not some ideal in life. It may be a material result they have set as their goal; it may be spiritual happiness. It is in the order of mental development that everyone endowed with even a minimum of reflective power should ask himself or herself, sometime or other, what is to be made of life. Wherein so many fall in reaching their goal or in having made a gallant fight towards its achievement is because doubts of success are entertained, or else life itself has not been devoted to the attainment. There is no primrose path to such a goal; it is a way hard and thorny. The end of the road can only be reached by self-disciplined humility and a constant readiness for self-sacrifice.

The discipline and sacrifice are more especially the lot of those who have framed a true ideal of life; those who would overcome the discontent of the heart. Material ends are all very well in their way but there is no assurance whatever that they will bring happiness in their train. It is truth and virtue which endow life with contentment; it is the ideal of these, coupled with the faith that there is something greater beyond this valley of the shadow, that when pursued makes for the moral and spiritual progress of mankind. Such an ideal cannot live alone in the sphere of the abstract. It must be clothed with reality and live and move on earth. It is, if it is to be of real value, a product of the powers of reasoning. It must be applied to the daily round of life; that is the framing of the ideal which is to be set up as the goal to be reached.

The old philosophers have told us a good deal of life's purpose and meaning. Socrates estimated wisdom as "an enlightened understanding of life." Aristotle drew a distinction between practical and speculative wisdom; the former that which teaches a man to face duty in the ordinary affairs of daily life, the latter by which is grasped the first principles of things. All writers are agreed that wisdom is the deliberate action of the whole man or woman. In other words, wisdom gives the sense of true values, enabling its possessor to meet life's duty and to bear life's trials. It makes him innately conscious that beyond mundane things there are eternal verities to which allegiance is demanded in the way of life and without which no final satisfaction can ever be attained. This is the knowledge, wisdom, call it what you will, that frames the eternal quest after the ideal.

When once the wish for something becomes predominant in the human consciousness all power will be exercised for achievement. Where there is failure in keeping the beacon light of the ideal constantly glowing is due to weakness in the desire to reach the goal. The greatest of goals ever set on earth is that of spiritual attainment. There are those who confess readily enough the truth of the religion they affect, but who do not rule their lives by it, and who do not wish to comply with its demands. They lack the will to direct and give it energy. Thus it dies down in their hearts. It is not expressed in their lives. It has no moral significance because it goes unpractised. It lacks the framework of reality, for faith without works is dead. Plato uttered a profound truth when he said that man should pray to have right wishes before he prayed that his wishes might be fulfilled.

Christianity is a way of life; a moral purpose to be achieved; a truth to be lived up to; an ideal to be framed. It is the challenge of Christ to the world. It is the promise of abiding happiness. To him who would attain the ultimate goal—eternal life—the answer has been given by the Master Himself: "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." That is the dictum and the promise. It is by following the Way, the Truth and the Life that we attain to the "endless resurrection of Love." The path is one torn by desire and tribulations. There are many who fall by the wayside because they will not put the framework round the ideal they have visualized, and it is only so that it can be made real. There is more, far more, than the mere appreciation of the ideal that is necessary.

It is for each and all who would invest the ideal with the framework of present reality to learn the secret that makes man the master of life. The true Christian is pre-eminently the wise man, for he has learned the highest standard of values by which he "reckons the worth of things in the balance of eternal truth." He it is who has the treasure which neither moth nor rust can corrupt. He is the exemplar of what a good life can be and the manner in which it endows its liver with happiness. He gives practical application to the pursuit of the ideal. He is building the framework every day. He has a direct motive and purpose and a controlling force. He is making the ideal, the real, and in the process deriving the purest satisfactions. In the grace of a good life he is obeying the behest of Christ—"This do, and thou shalt live."

AN OLD-FASHIONED ELECTION

There are those who look back with a certain affectionate regret to the former days when elections were taken seriously, to the knock-down-and-drag-out style of oratory in political meetings with occasional fistclouts and even riots in the times of open voting. If, however, they are willing to take the trouble to follow the course of events across the line they will find out to their satisfaction that there is a real old-fashioned election going on in that country.

Let them consider, for example, that usually staid and decorous journal, The Christian Science Monitor, which is moved to denounce its opponents in terms which may fairly be described as "unmeasured." It describes the Democrats as the forces of disorganization, as reactionaries in moral and economic theory, as the elements that confuse personal liberty with the gratification of depraved appetites. It declares with breathless vehemence that "nothing could contribute so greatly to the degradation of the national character" as an expression at the polls condemning the efforts to outlaw alcohol. Oratory of this sort fairly drips with reminiscences of the good old days. Moreover, the good Monitor gives prominence in its columns to a proposal to arrest everybody in possession of "illegal" liquor, the penalty on conviction to be one year, ten years, and life sentences for the first, second and third offences respectively, with hard labor in each case. The same penalties in this plan, are to be enforced in the cases of persons who are found intoxicated or who sell "illegal" liquor, or who being in office fail to enforce the law.

If the foregoing is not sufficiently intriguing perhaps a recent dispatch from Dallas, Texas, may prove that the spirit of old times is not dead yet. At a political convention in Dallas the other day "most of the state's most prominent leaders swung their fists in a free-for-all fight" that ensued when the former state governor urged the "loyal Democrats" present to retire from the meeting. They retired, attempting as they did so to snatch the standards from delegations of "loyalists." Eyes were blackened and noses bled as the "insurgents" retired from the hall amid shouts and jeers. Now, that is something like!

THE MORNING NEWSBOY

Before the city rises from its bed,
 Or the first smoke is to the sky up-cured,
 He comes, that we may know what's thought and said,
 And done, in any corner of the world.

I never saw him, as I have never seen
 The power that opens and closes the gates of day;
 But snow or rain; weather, or foul or clear,
 This youthful toiler is early on his way.

He ends the isolation of the night—
 We wake; the very world is at our doors!
 And while we breakfast in the morning light,
 We hear the waves beating on other shores;

And thus I thank the boy I never see—
 Unlabeled page of current history.
 —Alexander Louis Fraser.

THE DEVIL BY THE HORNS

(The noise made by motor traffic in London is now almost unbearable.) I recommend those who desire to silence the devil in the car to take him first by the horns. Whether by day or night, the only excuse for sounding your horn at every corner is to save the time that would be lost by slowing down. I doubt if in one case in a hundred would this trifling loss of time be of material consequence to anybody; the chief sufferers in London would be people who are in a hurry to catch trains, because, like the man who is hurrying home in the small hours, they did not start soon enough, and these people would continue to suffer in exactly the same way if there were a policeman at every corner to keep the way clear for them. The fact is that the cult of speed for its own sake has become a craze, and it is indulged at the expense of every other consideration—London Truth.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

The brilliant literary lights of the present day profess to despise the acknowledged bright literary lights of another day because in their works they were too sentimental. Consequently it is considered bad form for literary persons of the present day to give expression to feelings of sentiment. Passions may be expressed, the groarser the passions the more brutally they may be expressed; but all the finer and more tender emotions must be suppressed. Scott expressed one form of sentiment when he wrote:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
 Who never to himself has said,
 This is my own, my native land."

Thackeray expressed another form of sentiment when he wrote so feelingly of domestic ties and family affection and devotion. Dickens expressed a special form of sentiment when he wrathfully and scornfully assailed many of the social conditions and institutions of his own times. A reader of The Colonist, who apparently is a benighted sentimentalist, writes: "It is well to keep alive the old sentiments, for where there is no sentiment there can be no vision, and 'where there is no vision the people perish.' If there were no sentiment, we wonder what would become of that intangible institution the British Empire. There are practical politicians, many of them in Great Britain and not a few of them in Canada, who despise patriotic sentiments."

A Scottish politician who despises patriotic sentiment is at the present time visiting Canada. This eminently practical and unemotional politician has publicly declared that the thing for Canadians to do is to form an independent republic, based upon Communist principles, of course. The Russian allies of this Liberal minded statesman have had missionaries in Canada trying to convince the people of this country that that is the very thing they should do, and have been obliged to confess that the job is hopeless.

On the other hand, the British leader of the political party the revolutionary mentioned professions to follow also has been visiting Canada, and if he was not a sentimentalist and without vision when he arrived he was a sentimentalist with a very keen vision when he left. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald says he brought his heart with him from the Highlands and has left it in Canada. That is a very emphatic expression of a sentimental hope that Canada may continue a loyal British Dominion.

During the present week Victoria will entertain for a time a very distinguished visitor, and we fully expect that event will be an occasion for an irrepressible outbreak of sentiment. If you are in the habit, which is a professional habit in our case, of making notes of strange faces upon the streets, and see an unusual number of persons with stalwart figures and fair hair (in some cases with Auburn whiskers), strutting along as proudly as Highland pipers, you will understand that one of the clans has gathered for the sentimental purpose of welcoming its chief, Lord Lovat is in town, and the heart of every Fraser is aglow and the blood of every Fraser is coursing merrily through the veins of every body bearing the name of Fraser. The chief of the great clan will receive a Highland welcome from all his sentimental clansmen.

We should not be surprised if His Lordship already has found out that there are more Frasers in Canada than there are in Scotland. At any rate we have met Frasers in almost every province of this wide Dominion with the exception of Prince Edward Island and Quebec, and we are almost sure that the Frasers we did not meet in those provinces have been met by their chief in his tour of Canada—for it is one of the most attractive of the qualities of all men and women of Highland blood that wherever the chief is there will his faithful followers be gathered to him. And, like the MacDonalds, wherever the Frasers are they are usually in the highest places. Some of them may have been hewers of wood and drawers of water in the beginning, but in the end you will find them on the Bench, at the head of the Bar, on the front seats in the Legislature, or in private offices in the banks and counting houses. The only physical feature that distinguishes them from their multitude of Celtic brethren in Canada is their fair hair, and occasionally, in the case of an octogenarian, whiskers that retain their pristine brilliance of hue in defiance of the passage of time.

So that if there were no sentiment, there could be no coherence of the clans. The clansmen are now scattered over the face of the earth, but wherever they may be they are loyal to their chief. The sentiment of loyalty is their distinguishing characteristic. And wherever you find them, they are as loyal to the Empire they have played a prominent part in creating and maintaining as they are to their hereditary chief. The sentiment they brought with them from the hills and the glens they have cherished and disseminated throughout the cities and the plains of Canada. That is one of the chief reasons why Canadians are so unwavering in their loyalty to the British Empire.

Education—Its Aims and Ideals

(Article I)

At the present time the minds of many are turned with a justifiable mixture of curiosity and interest and hope towards the Ministry of Education. It is not an idle curiosity, based on petty or party interest, rather it is in the main at least, an interest born of the now general public recognition of the importance of education as a vital, virile factor of civil, provincial, national and international life.

Science is now confirming the teaching of ancient philosophies that life is constant motion, with an ever-recurring ebb and flow, a waxing and waning, a disappearing to reappear, that life never steadily or statically is, but is without cessation a becoming, an infinite process involving innumerable changes. It follows, therefore, that education which gives man the secret or power of adapting and adjusting himself to the changing situations and conditions of life successfully (i.e., in such a manner as to make those conditions his own) is a necessity of life, must of necessity have within itself this self-adjusting quality, this quality of elasticity and adaptability to changing times, demands, and opportunities.

As in "the affairs of men," so in that branch of them which pertains to education "there is a time, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." That tide for Victoria herself and for the whole province of British Columbia may be washing in on our shores this very hour.

THE NEW WEST

There is no logical reason why Victoria should not become the Athens of a Western Civilization which some day shall make a contribution to the history of humanity equal to that of the Greeks. If not surpassing it, "There is no reason to suppose," says Gilbert Murray, one of the finest of present-day Greek scholars, "that the ancient Greeks were miraculously handsome," or possessed of "a mythically fine climate." As far as natural physique is concerned, we venture to assert that the robust young manhood and womanhood of Canada in general, and of British Columbia in particular, can hold its own anywhere, and as for climate, we unhesitatingly proffer the claim that, to the qualities of the two recognized types of California climate, the "very fine" and the "exceptional," Victoria adds the further attraction of variety. This is no spurious claim, for variety is the charm of the changing seasons make for new life and fresh inspiration.

Athens, situated on a peninsula in the Gulf of Egea, with its lower city in the harbor of Piræus, the "Mars Hill" from which "the prospect, both landward and seaward was superb," was the centre of Greek art and learning. Her protecting deity was Athena or Athene, a goddess in whom "power and wisdom were harmoniously blended," and who, besides being the protectress of agriculture, presided over the wisdom, intellectual and moral side of human life. "Victoria," is named after a queen in whom power and wisdom were undisturbedly blended and who presided over the life of a great nation during a long period of the most remarkable intellectual and moral activity. A future queen of cities, she stands in royal splendor, a harbor at her feet, the inspirational majesty of the snow-crowned Olympus facing her, the wealth and the beauty of the Pacific Ocean at her back, the friendship, the wisdom, and the art of the Orient within her reach. What more wonderfully endowed birthplace for a coming great civilization could Divine Wisdom devise?

"Victoria, the Athens of the West," should be our watchword—Victoria, the future centre of art and learning, the training of its kind, industrial, agricultural, scientific, should be our civic ideal, an ideal to pass on to succeeding generations.

DEMANDS UPON EDUCATION

Life in this age makes new and increasing demands upon all who, in any way, help to mould the life of a nation. Education, lying as it does, at the very basis of national life, has to shoulder a heavy, far-reaching responsibility. No longer may these hoary and hardy perennials, the advocates of the "three R's," and the devotees of so-called "common sense," whose "common sense" so limits and obscures their vision that they maintain what was best for the past is best for the present, or blindly confine themselves to "hard facts," wholly losing sight of the one supreme fact, viz., that the facts of yesterday are no longer the facts of today, and still further removed in all probability from being the facts of the future—facts being in the hands of the wisest, "like the flea in the American story, when you've got your finger on him is the time he isn't there"—no longer may these obsolete human obstacles in the path of Victoria's and British Columbia's progress be wantonly allowed to obscure the mind and vision of the public. The time has come when they and their cheap catchwords must be instantly brushed aside if the clock of the present and the coming generation of youngsters is not to be put back ten years or more.

Life at the present time demands more than facing facts; it demands looking ahead. It demands of its leaders in education not knowledge only, but vision, not (as has already been said) parsimony, but economy; not caution merely, but wise enterprise. And its demands are not confined to the leaders of education. It demands of us citizens, not carping, crippling criticism, but a positive contribution in the form of co-operation in the consideration, support, and promotion of anything and everything pertaining to the educational well-being and progress of the young—Semper Paratus.

Y.W.C.A. WORK TOO BIG FOR BUILDING

Reports Read at Directors' Meeting Show Inadequacy of Accommodation Being Experienced

Already the accommodation in the new building is proving inadequate to the needs of the work, it was reported at the Y.W.C.A. directors' meeting on Friday. In the last three months, while 726 people were accommodated, more than 300 who wanted to stay at the Y.W.C.A. had to be referred to other places because of lack of room. The popularity of the dining-room was shown in the large number of meals served. The total being 13,815. The Travelers' Aid reported meeting 768 boats and trains and assisting 533 people.

Miss Ella Cook, graduate of the Margaret Eaton School of Physical Culture, Toronto, was appointed as director of the physical culture work. Classes will open on October 2. It was reported that horizontal bars, clubs, dumb-bells and wands had been purchased for this department. Arrangements are being made for classes in dressmaking, china painting and basketry. There will also be a course in home economics, including art of dressing, interior decoration, etc.

Through the co-operation of Miss Clay, librarian of the Public Library, the children's story hour, which was so popular last year, will reopen on Saturday, October 13. The membership committee reported thirteen new members and eight renewals. Several new books were donated by friends. The library now boasts 1,253 books. The association was very grateful for contributions of magazines and papers.

It was decided to hold an anniversary tea and sale of work on October 26. This will be the first anniversary of the opening of the new building.

A GOOD SHOW

Sir,—May I draw the attention of your readers to Lee Jaxon and his band of performers now at the Coliseum Theatre. I have known Mr. Jaxon for the last eight years, and have followed his career on the stage with interest. He has made good in every particular, and I would strongly recommend all Victorians who can to make it their business to visit the Coliseum during the coming week.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaels

Thought makes sunless hours bright,
 Weaves its fabric of delight
 Into Golden veils to spread
 Over scenes when joy has fled
 Till each aspect is transformed,
 Every light and shadow warmed.
 Thoughts are forces that can change.

Commonplace to fair and strange,
 Poor and weak to rich and strong,
 Discord into matchless song
 Every marvel may be wrought
 By the magic wand of thought,
 Which through all the universe
 Waves of gladness can disperse.
 Fashion, then, your world anew
 By the thinking that you do!

Mother—Oh, Freddie, did you hit your little brother?
 Freddie—Yes, but I told him it hurt me more than it did him.

DINNER IS TENDERED TO CAPT. TROUP

Tribute Is Paid to Past Services of Retiring Executive by Officers of Steamship Service

PRINCESS LOUISE SCENE OF BANQUET

Fleet of Twenty-Eight Vessels Is Monument to Former Head of B.C. Coast Steamship Service

Tribute was paid to Capt. J. W. Troup, on the occasion of his retirement from the management of the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service, by a dinner tendered to him on board the Princess Louise last night.

Mr. J. E. McMullen, of Vancouver, chairman of the advisory board for this province, in proposing the toast to "The Canadian Pacific Railway and Subsidiaries," said that in enumerating the many subsidiaries of the company he could not but put the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service in a premier position, and in doing so was reminded that it was a name that was a source of constant admiration on the part of officials of the company. He paid tribute to Captain Troup for the standard of service he had set up and retained during his term of office. He alluded to the progressive policy of the service first established by Captain Troup in obtaining the construction of the Princess Victoria, which had been followed by even more magnificent ships to bring into being a fleet of coastwise vessels that was the pride of this continent.

Mr. A. Cotterell, general superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in responding to the toast, said that "the railway is the nucleus of the splendid organization of the Canadian Pacific Railway as it is today, comprising as it does coast steamship services, Great Lakes and other inland water services, telegraph, hotel system and various other enterprises."

ROSE TO OCCASION
"Captain Troup came into the service with the tenacity and courage of a navigator who had plied through troubled waters. He took a grasp of the situation as it was when the Canadian Pacific Railway acquired a fleet of coastwise vessels from the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company in 1901 and built up a service of which everyone is justly proud. The fleet is a monument to the captain and his untiring energies."

Of the fleet of sixteen vessels acquired by the Canadian Pacific Railway at that time, the fleet that remained in the service at the present time.

Mr. R. G. McNillie, general passenger agent at Winnipeg, expressed the sincere admiration and respect of the Winnipeg staff to Captain Troup.

Capt. C. D. Nerousoos, newly appointed manager of the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service, proposed the toast to "Our Honored Guest."

It was with mixed feelings that I rise to propose this toast. I feel honored in being called upon, and am greatly honored in being asked to take over the position formerly occupied by Captain Troup. It is also with a deep feeling of regard to him that I shall conduct him over the gangplank, and bid him good-night, if not good-bye," Captain Nerousoos stated.

"MOTLEY FLEET"
"It was a motley fleet that was operated in these waters at the time Captain Troup took hold of the reins. The fleet that is the admiration of not only this continent but also Great Britain today bears testimony to the enterprise, foresight, and capabilities of my predecessor."

Mr. J. M. Cameron, manager of the E. & N. Railway, also speaking to the toast, said that he appreciated the friendship of Captain Troup. It could not be repeated what some other speaker had said in paying tribute to his services that "the fleet is the captain's monument."

Captain J. W. Troup, in replying to the toast, gave some reminiscences of the old days of steamboating on this coast. He told of how the bringing into being of the observation rooms on board all coastwise vessels, an improvement that was first adopted by the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service on this continent. He thanked many of the officials by name for their assistance and valuable work, and also thanked collectively the entire staff of the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service for their co-operation and loyalty of service.

Mr. R. D. Desbriay, general passenger agent at Vancouver, proposed the toast to the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service. It was a service that had not only won the admiration of every one, but was the envy of many. This he knew for he had just come from the Ticket Agents' Convention in Seattle, where much favorable comment had been made with regard to the service.

superintendent of the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service, said, in referring to the standard of service that had been set up, that "one man cannot do it alone. It is teamwork that counts. Let us give that co-operation to our new manager that we have so willingly given to Captain Troup in the past."

SHIP A YEAR
Mr. J. H. Alexander, superintendent engineer, in reply to the toast, alluded to the former fleet of vessels operated by the company. The first new ship, the Princess Victoria, had been brought to this coast in 1903. Twenty-five years had elapsed since then. The company had twenty-eight ships at the present time. "An average of a ship a year. And now we learn that we are to have yet two more new vessels."

"In the progress of the service, which has been phenomenal, there is no man whose soul is so dead that he cannot trace the master hand of Captain Troup upon the progress that has been ours."

Mr. J. H. Taylor, chief clerk of the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service, read many telegrams and letters of tribute from officials of the company, and men who had been associated with Captain Troup. Among the messages received were the following from Mr. Grant Hall, vice president at Montreal; Mr. C. E. Stockdill, assistant to the vice-president at Winnipeg; Mr. J. S. Byrom, assistant manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Vancouver; Captain E. Beetham, former superintendent of the Ocean Service; Mr. E. L. Sheehan, and many others.

MESSAGE FROM MR. HALL
The telegram from Mr. Grant Hall reads as follows:

"It is most gratifying to know that the officers of the company on the Pacific Coast have deemed it expedient to express in a tangible manner the high esteem in which a valued and respected officer was held. Those achievements in the service of the Canadian Pacific have left behind him such a splendid record, and one which anyone might well be proud of, in the retirement of Captain Troup, which has been of his own free will, the company loses the active service of a man whose long and successful career has been a source of inspiration to all who have known him. Your guest of honor for a great many years, and while owing to the distance and time not permitting I shall be unable to be present, I should like to place before you my warmest and most sincere wishes that he and Mrs. Troup may be spared to enjoy many years of good health, happiness and prosperity."

The toast, ending with musical honors, brought to a close a most successful banquet. The assisting artists on the programme were Mr. Robert Morrison and Mr. R. Gray, vocal soloists, and Mr. P. H. Hughes, pianist.

WESTERN COAL THREATENED BY TARIFF CHANGE

Realizing this, Mr. McKenzie had a letter addressed to all the coaliers in the province calling their attention to the application of his services to the building of houses or other buildings that need to be brought up to date, to enhance their value, appearance and safety. In view of the fact that there are 400,000 tons shipped into the United States from the Crow's Nest district, and perhaps about 150,000 tons from the Vancouver Island coal mines, the matter is one of more than passing importance and it was felt by the Minister of Mines that the application of the Eastern producers should not be allowed to pass unchallenged by the British Columbia industry.

MAY PRESENT CASE
Awaiting a reply from the companies directly interested, the Minister of Mines will take no further action until it is possible for the Western producers of coal may find it advisable to be represented at the hearing by the Tariff Advisory Board on September 25.

Mr. McKenzie is ready to lend any aid that lies in his power to avoid any upsetting of the trade conditions as they may affect the coal export trade.

LOSS OF LIFE IS HEAVY IN RUINED CITY

Governor Towner has appealed to the Red Cross for aid.

FLORIDA THREATENED

By Canad. Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The tropical hurricane that has spread destruction across Porto Rico, the eastern shore of Santo Domingo and the Virgin Islands, leaving the threat of famine and disease in its wake, was taking the Bahamas to-day, and was due, unless it should change its course or blow itself out, to strike the Florida coast tomorrow. The Weather Bureau expected that such a change of course, in either direction, might occur today, when the storm was due to reach Nassau. A swing to the west would send the hurricane hurtling between Cuba and the southern tip of Florida, with possible damage to Gulf states, and a curve eastward would point upward to the Virginia capes, or completely cut into the Atlantic, where it would menace the crowded maritime traffic to the Panama Canal.

FOURTH DAY OF STORM

This was the fourth day of the hurricane and it was proceeding with fury along the northwestern track. Friday night it passed over Turk's Island, in the British West Indies, destroying shipping and causing wholesale damage ashore, and yesterday it was raising havoc throughout the southern fringe of the Bahamas.

Tens of thousands of inhabitants of the stricken islands were homeless. Countless houses and business buildings, hospitals, mission schools and camps were laid waste before the onslaught of the storm, described in dispatches from the zone of the disaster as one of the most ferocious and destructive hurricanes in the history of the Caribbean.

NEED URGENT

Appeals for assistance said that relief must be sent at once if famine and disease were to be averted. The stricken population, it was said, could subsist for a few days on food available, but when that was gone they would be faced with imminent starvation. The American Red Cross yesterday appropriated an initial $50,000 for a relief fund and dispatched a trained disaster crew to Porto Rico on a naval ship from Charleston, S.C.

Communication with the ravaged areas is still scant, and it is impossible to tell to what total the list of property damage and loss of life might eventually rise. But it was known that the deaths would run high. Ten persons were killed in Ponce, Porto Rico, alone, and damage ashore and to shipping will aggregate many millions of dollars.

TELESCOPIC GLANCE

A telescopic glance at the West Indian hurricane by the Associated Press:
San Juan, Porto Rico—Seventy per cent of the beautiful capital's homes and 40 per cent of its buildings believed destroyed.
Ponce, Porto Rico—Ten dead, 700 homeless. Extensive damage, although Ponce apparently not so hard hit as San Juan.
Humaco, Porto Rico—Thirty dead; widespread damage.

Nassau—Shipping ordered to anchor in expectation that falling barometer forecasts arrival of the storm.
St. Croix, Virgin Islands—Hundreds homeless.
San Salvador—Stiff northeast gale blowing this afternoon.

Turk's Island, British West Indies—Two schooners damaged; one reported lost with all hands.
Puerto Plata, San Domingo—Bull line freighter Lillian driven ashore yesterday.

PANAMA CANAL TRANSITS GIVEN

During 1927 the Panama Canal was transited by 2,753 commercial vessels flying the flag of the United States, an increase of 2.5 per cent over the preceding year, according to the Panama Canal Record. Despite this gain, vessels under the American flag accounted for only 42.6 per cent of the total number of transits, as against 49 per cent in the fiscal year 1927, and the cargo they carried, amounting to 12,428,735 tons, showed a decrease of 6.5 per cent from 1927, and accounted for only 48.1 per cent of the total, as against 54.9 per cent in the preceding year. British ships, forming the second largest group of transits, showed heavy gains, the total being 1,942 vessels, carrying 8,075,022 tons of cargo, increases of 36.3 per cent and 25.4 per cent, respectively, over 1927. Germany displaced Norway in third place in the number of transits, with 316 vessels, but Norway continued third place as regards cargo carried, with a total of 1,268,124 tons. German ships carried 1,185,421 tons of cargo in 1928, as against 973,714 in 1927. American vessels paid tolls amounting to $12,645,880, or 46.8 per cent of the total.

Cabaret Held at Club Is Success

The spacious verandas and grounds of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club were en fête yesterday afternoon when the Victorian Order of Nurses held a successful and enjoyable cabaret. Hundreds of guests mingled on the lawns or enjoyed boating on the calm waters of Cadboro Bay, while many danced in the reception-room to the accompaniment of a popular orchestra. During the afternoon a musical programme was given between the boards. Mrs. Brian Tyrwhitt Drake, acting as soloist in the absence of Mrs. F. G. Aldous, who was indisposed. The Misses Bucklin and Miss Owen Harper played two much-appreciated numbers and received great applause. Pupils of Miss Nellie Thacker gave several delightful dances, the grace and attractive freshness of the young artists being particularly pleasing. Miss Una Patterson danced a pretty "Bubble Dance." Jean Thacker gave an Oriental dance. Dorothy Baird was attractive in her "Scarf Dance," and a "Greek Bacchanale," by a group of fifteen nymphs in frocks of soft-gauze, was another pretty number. Lou Robertson caused much amusement by her clever monologue. The rooms were massed with lovely autumn flowers, great bowls of goldensun, dahlias, chrysanthemums, etc., adding a brilliant note of color, while baskets and vases of flowers decked the verandas.

Miss Olive Robertson and Miss D. Merrick had charge of the bridge arrangements and there were nine tables of players. In the grounds a number of men of the H. sold ice cream to ready purchasers, while "pinning the tail on the donkey" proved an irresistible attraction for the kiddies.

The committee extends special thanks to the Army and Navy Veterans for the use of chairs and tables; to Captain Parker, of the Dockyard, to Mr. Lindsey, to Mr. Ravenhill and men of the H. for valuable assistance, and to Miss Thacker, instructress of the clever dancers.

Among those noticed at the hour were: Mr. and Mrs. Hotham, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hartley, Mrs. A. Gillespie, Mrs. C. E. Thomas, Mrs. J. W. Lennox, Mrs. B. S. MRS. EVA BAIRD TO GIVE RECITAL

Interesting Musical Event to Take Place at Empress Hotel on October 9

The keenest interest will be taken by many Victorians in the announcement of the forthcoming recital of Mrs. Eva Baird, Canadian contralto, who has recently returned from a very successful season devoted to study and concert work in Paris. This interesting event will take place at the Empress Hotel ballroom on Tuesday evening, October 9. Those who have heard Mrs. Baird are unanimous in the opinion that she displays many new qualities in her magnificent voice—a richer and more brilliant quality, along with a greater enhanced range of expressiveness than formerly possessed. Constant recital and concert work have further given Mrs. Baird wonderful poise, and the greatest finesse is apparent in the detail of her phrasing and diction. In the interpretation of her songs she shows keen intelligence. While in Paris she studied with such noted teachers, artists and composers as Gustav Schindler, Rachmanoff (accompanist of Chabrier), Honigberger, Schmitt and Roussel, the last three being composers of the best modern music.

Opens Studio of Voice Culture

Mr. Bruce Hamilton, who recently appeared at the Capitol Theatre as concert singer, has now located at Victoria, and has opened a studio for teaching technical voice culture. The courses will cover vocal work, not only in connection with work on the stage, but in relation to speaking as well. Lessons in psychology, in which Mr. Hamilton has spent eight years in research, will also be given.

Here is one of the most adorable dinner gowns I have seen in an age. Of beige pongee lace, it is simply made in bouffant style. The deep bertha collar and the even hemline are stressed by a border of chiffon in matching shade, while a rectangular amber pin closes the neckline.

Wedding Takes Place In Oak Bay

St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening when Rev. A. E. del. Nunns united in marriage Miss Florence Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thompson, 1438 Begbie Street, and Mr. Dudley Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stephens, 1180 May Street. The church had been prettily decorated by friends of the bride.

As the bridal party entered, the choir met them and preceded them up the aisle singing "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." The bride was charming in her gown of white georgette trimmed with panels of silk lace. Her embroidered net veil, worn Juliet cap fashion, was caught with clusters of orange blossoms at each side and she carried a bouquet of Opheelia roses, orange blossoms which had been worn by her mother, and fern. Her only ornament was a string of seed pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Gladys Rennie was maid of honor in a frock of blue and pink georgette, with a picture hat of mo-hair trimmed with pink velvet ribbon. Miss Irene Thain and Miss Peggy Whiteley were bridesmaids in frocks of pink and green beaded georgette, respectively. They wore bouquets of asters and chrysanthemums. Mr. Eric Housley was best man, the ushers being Messrs. Frank and Norman Farrell.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride and groom were assisted in receiving their friends by Mrs. Thompson. A buffet supper was served, the three-tier wedding cake occupying the place of honor on the table.

The bride and groom left by the Edmonds ferry en route by motor to San Francisco. The bride traveled in a brown georgette frock, trimmed with cut velvet, a mink coat and brown velvet hat. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens will reside in an apartment at May Street and Linden Avenue.

Princess May Be Posted On "Pillar of Dishonor"

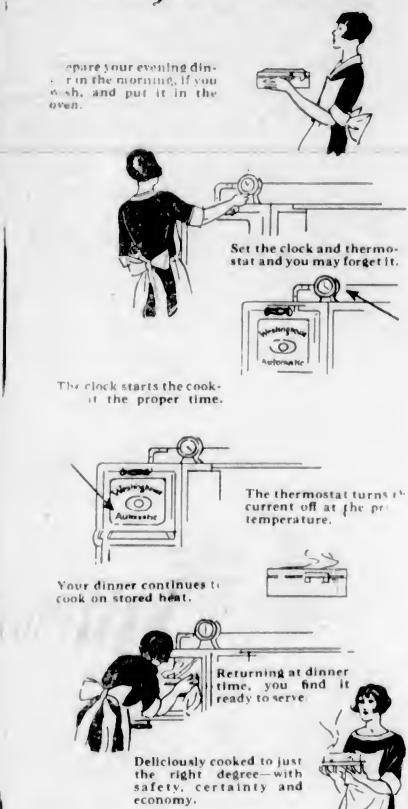

Women Students' Club of Leyden University to Make No Exception in Case of Marriage of Heiress to Throne

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LEYDEN, Holland, Sept. 15.—No matter whom Princess Juliana, heiress to the throne of the Netherlands, may decide to marry, she will be pilloried upon the announcement of her engagement. That is, her name and that of her fiancé will be stuck up on a post, humorously nicknamed the "Pillar of Dishonor," in the Women's Students' Club of Leyden University. Juliana will not be spared the "disgrace."

The Dutch Crown Princess probably will look back upon her college days as the happiest of her life. She enjoys more freedom at Leyden than she can possibly indulge in at the Royal Castle at The Hague, where a rigid court atmosphere prevails. How rigid these restrictions are may be judged from the remark the nineteen-year-old Princess made when she could not wear high heels. "Fine, then I can wear high heels."

from Leyden, the Princess and four girl friends who live with her are more than adequately chaperoned by ladies-in-waiting. But aside from this, Juliana leads the life of an ordinary college girl.

AN ORDINARY STUDENT
When the Crown Princess entered Leyden a year ago, she stated emphatically that she wished to be treated just like any other student. Hence, when she joined the Women Students' Club, she did what is customary for all freshmen to do—called on the members of the executive committee at their various boarding houses.

"My daughter offered to reverse the process and call on the Princess," the mother of one of them said, "but she would not have it. She came as simply and modestly, and I may add as bashfully as any new student."

Like any other freshman, she sat on the floor whenever there weren't enough seats during a lecture or some other club function.

The only concession made to her position is the fact that all the classes which she attends are held in the same classroom. It is located on the second floor of the main hall, and can be reached only via an open staircase. "This makes it easy for the secret service to check up on everybody who enters and leaves the lecture hall," the head janitor explained.

A GREAT READER
As to the range of her readings, the professor said:
"The Princess reads up on the most varied topics. She is particularly fond of literature, especially of contemporary writers, but also studies with interest such works as Trotsky's book on the Russian revolution. Her comment on it was, 'Trotsky is certainly a man of strong views.'"

Juliana is an enthusiastic member of the Women Students' Club, which has a membership of 425. Until this autumn it occupied rooms in the Conservatory of Music. Hardly a day passed but that Juliana dropped in there.

Each year the freshmen compete in writing a class song. Juliana entered the contest with 120 girls. Her song was accepted as the best. "We had no idea that the Princess competed," a member of the song jury told the correspondent. The authors' names were contained in sealed envelopes which were opened only after the award had been made.

Juliana's club is now housed in a spacious mansion, the home of a late burgomaster, only a few doors from the university's main hall.

"Princess Juliana's joining helped our club considerably," one of the trustees said. "To acquire this property, we had to issue bonds, and the fact that the Princess took a generous share of them naturally helped us elsewhere."

Among the students and town-folk of Leyden Princess Juliana is generally known as a "good fellow." She loves to go shopping, to munch cakes in some pastry shop, to explore the winding streets of centuries-old Leyden.

PRINCESS MUSICAL
Like her father, she is musical. She plays the violin and attends the Loyal concerts regularly. From her mother she has inherited a certain talent for painting.

Ice skating is about the only outdoor sport of which Princess Juliana is fond. Her mother tried in vain to interest her in horseback riding. She likes camping, however, and during the summer often spends the week-end at Apeldoorn, where she and her friends have a tent. She travels there in the ordinary interurban omnibus.

Lipsicks and rouge are unknown quantities to this healthy, buxom Dutch lass. Whether she would prefer bobbed hair and shorter skirts than her mother permits has not been disclosed.

The four young women who share the villa at Katwyk with her are two daughters of Rev. Michiel, of the Hague, a French Huguenot preacher, Miss De Brauw, whose father is dean of the Dutch bar, and Miss Rosenboom, daughter of a former governor-general of the Dutch East Indies. This quintet of Leyden co-eds is so congenial that all Katwyk speaks of them as the "Jolly sea stars," with the image of a five-pointed starfish in mind.

While other people are breaking their heads over the question of what shall be the Prince Consort's lead the careless life of a co-ed, and her rather bored air at court functions would seem to indicate that she'd far rather be an ordinary human being than "the Lord's anointed."

Welsh Folk Meet
Mr. Dlesin Williams, again lectured to the Victoria Welsh Society at its monthly meeting at St. David's Hall 1414 Douglas Street, on Friday, his subject on this occasion being "Literature and the Arts," with special reference to Tennyson.

There was a good musical programme also, with several recitations added, the taking part being Miss May Lewis, vocal; Miss Jessie Jones, A.L.C.M., piano solos; Mr. T. Rhodes, vocal, accompanied by Miss Rhodes; Mr. R. S. Williams, Miss Hafren, and Miss Elwyn Davies, vocal duet, accompanied at the piano by Miss Edith Lewis; Miss Gladys Kinsey, piano solos; Mr. J. M. Thomas, vocal.

Announcement was made of the Welsh Society bazaar, to be held in November. A meeting has been called for next Tuesday evening for the ladies to come together to organize the affair.

The president, Mr. R. Thomas, was in the chair at the meeting. Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. T. Williams and Mr. J. C. Williams, assisted by others.

The best time for a man to make an ass of himself is before he gets rich and becomes news.

If You Love Nice Intimate Things

The other negligee is of an entirely different type, and shows an elaboration of line as well as material. Black and gold lace forms border, train and huge cuffs, which should rightfully be termed sleeves.

Weddings

FERGUSON—HADLEY

A pretty wedding took place at Christ Church Cathedral last Wednesday afternoon, when Hon. Rev. Canon Hinchliffe united in matrimony Edith Marion, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hadley, Curtis Point, George Road, and Mr. Russell Edward Ferguson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ferguson, Douglas Street, Victoria. The bride is a native of Red Deer, Alta., and is a talented pianist, while the groom is a Victoria man. To the Bridal Chorus, played by Mr. Eden Quinton, the bride entered the church with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and wore a lovely wedding gown of white tulle with a bouffant ruffled skirt. Her embroidered silk net veil was caught with a circlet of orange blossoms and she carried Ophelia roses, white carnations and fern. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The Misses Joyce and Kitty Cave, cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. Miss Joyce Cave wore a pretty bouffant gown of yellow tulle and tulle, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and white carnations. Miss Kitty Cave wore a similar gown of pale pink georgette and lace, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas, carnations and fern. Both wore necklaces to match their gowns, the gift of the bridegroom. Mr. Robin Ledingham supported the bridegroom, and the ushers were Messrs. Arthur Cave, Arnold Cave and George Ford. During the signing of the register Mrs. W. P. McDonald, of Vancouver, formerly of Victoria, sang "I Love You Truly." After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple receiving their many guests beneath an archway of evergreens and white dahlias, from which hung a large wedding bell. Mrs. Hadley, mother of the bride, was smart in beige satin with hat to match, and Mrs. Ferguson, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of black satin.

A buffet luncheon was served from a table prettily decorated in pink and white and centred with a three-tier wedding cake. The bride cut the wedding cake with the sword of her father, who is a naval veteran. The young couple received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson left for a honeymoon trip to Seattle, Portland and Vancouver, the bride travelling in a frock of tan satin and georgette, with black tulle coat with deep fur collar and cuffs and hat of tan velvet. On their return they will reside at 3213 Wascana Street, Victoria.

MASON—TAYLOR
A pretty wedding took place at St. Mark's Church, Boleskine Road, last night in the presence of a large number of friends of the bride and groom, when Miss Isabel Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. J. Taylor, and wore a charming wedding dress of white georgette all pleated, a veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of exquisite flowers. Miss Marjorie Williams acted as bridesmaid and wore a frock of orange silk with sand georgette and felt hat to match. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. William Mason. A Holiday in the Cariboo

By GEORGE M. WATT

An opportune time having arrived to enjoy a long holiday, I took advantage of it to visit my eldest son in the Cariboo.

I left Victoria on Sunday afternoon, July 22, on the Ss. Princess Kathleen for a six-week stay in the North. After staying a night in Vancouver I boarded, at 9 a.m., the Ss. Lady Alexander, one of the Union Ss. Co.'s splendid line of boats which ply up Howe Sound to Quenel, the present end of the line. The sail up Howe Sound is a delight to the eye, and the calls at Britannia Mines, the largest copper property in the world, and at Woodville, where an important pulp plant is situated, gives the visitor an idea of large industries near at hand.

We arrived at Squamish at one o'clock, the train leaving almost immediately on the 390-mile journey to Quenel.

The scenery along the P.G.E. has frequently been described and illustrated, but no word picture can adequately describe the wonderful beauty and charm of the country through which the railway passes. The immense waterfalls, the deep, roaring canyons, the forest-clad mountains, and the beautiful lakes, some of them miles long, such as Anderson and Seton Lakes, along which the railway runs. The train stops at certain places, such as Cheakamus Canyon and Brandywine Falls, giving passengers time to get out and view these wonderful places. Some of the highest mountains in British Columbia are to be seen, reaching heights of almost 10,000 feet. It is a country of big game,

BRIDGE RIVER DEVELOPMENT

The first stop of any importance at Bridge River, where the B.C. Electric is building one of the great hydro-electric developments on the continent. There is a hotel, a school, a hospital, a recreation building, permanent houses for the staff, as well as smaller houses for workmen and their families, and a core of bunkhouses for the men, together with office buildings, machine shop and warehouses.

To obtain hydraulic power, the waters of Bridge River, which flow in a more or less parallel valley to that of Anderson and Seton Lakes, but at a considerably higher elevation, will be caught by a high concrete dam and diverted through the heart of Mission Mountain, in a tunnel two and a quarter miles long, the outlet of which is on the side of the mountain, 1,200 feet above the waters of Seton Lake. The total cost of this tunnel will probably reach $2,000,000. Down the side of this steep mountain the Bridge waters will descend through huge steel pipes, or penstocks, at the end of which the waters will rush with tremendous force, hurling themselves against the huge water-wheels in the power house on the shore of Seton Lake, which, in their turn, will drive the generators, producing light and power. The first two units will generate 60,000 horsepower, at a cost of $13,000,000. It is said that the Bridge River work may be under construction almost continuously for twenty or thirty years, until the 700,000 horsepower is fully developed. Then there is the transmission line that will convey power at 165,000 volts the 135 miles to Vancouver.

MINING EXPANSION

Mining development too, has been greatly stimulated as the prospect of cheap hydro-electric power looms up from the Bridge River project. The consolidation of the Lorne and Coronation mines nearby, and the development of other mining properties, means that the district close to Vancouver may become the leading gold-producing camp in the province in the near future.

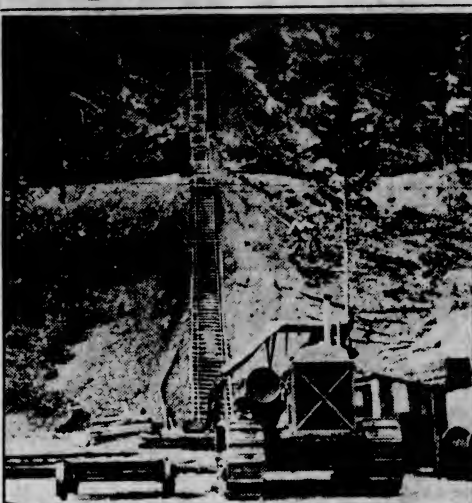

Lillooet and Clinton are the centres of large agricultural districts and the latter is also the station where passengers from Ashcroft join the P.G.E.

Williams Lake is more or less of a railway town and the business centre of a large district. Here, Mr. Mackenzie, the newly-elected member for the Cariboo district, has his business centre.

SODA CREEK

Soda Creek is picturesquely situated on the banks of the Fraser and is reminiscent of the stage coach and steamboat days. Unfortunately, the P.G.E. has sidetracked this place, the station being two miles from the town. At Soda Creek a new ferry has been built, and the P.G.E. has just finished a new road on the west side of the river, a great boon and time saver to those living on that side.

immense territory, ranchers here cattle on their ranges, which include the well known Gang Ranch, belonging to the Western Canada Cattle Company, which run over 6,000 head of cattle. From Talla Lake to the Gang Ranch over 35,000 head of cattle run on the different ranges.

PINE STOCK COUNTRY

"The Cariboo," says Mr. Gowan, who owns and controls a large area, "is the finest stock country in Northern Canada. To obtain a correct impression of the ranches, one must travel over them, preferably on horseback, as by that means alone one can reach those 'draws' of nutritious grasses, tucked away amid sheltering hills and bluffs covered with poplar and small fir. In these bluffs the cattle and sheep can secure protection from the worst storms."

Mr. Gowan is also agent for the Marquis of Exeter and Lord Egerton of Tatton, who have just imported a trainload of several thousand sheep for their ranges at 108 and 111 Mile House.

Soda Creek is the most northerly point in the province where fruit trees can be successfully grown. I saw the remains of an apple orchard planted thirty years ago and still bearing fruit. Here, too, is one of the very few places where the flour mill is driven by waterpower.

QUENEL

Quenel, the present end of the line, is a town of no small importance, and has been ever since the early pioneer days. It is only sixty-four miles from Barkerville, famous in the early days of gold mining. Quenel stands on the banks of the Fraser River, where a splendid view of the coming of age of Lord Astor's son, William Astor, has just been celebrated at Cliveden.

George, connecting with the Canadian National, farmers always will have difficulty in getting stock to the market. If the railway is not sold, it is fervently hoped, by those most interested that the new Government, under Dr. Tomin, will be able to get the line completed.

There is some talk of a pulp mill at Prince George being established. The magnificent forest country around there, where the immense growth of spruce, poplar, etc., would indicate that this would be a paying proposition, and thereby create an industry that would give employment to a great number.

There is no doubt abundant and various opportunities in the Cariboo country for many people. Sheep raising would be quite a profitable business for the small farmer, homesteader, or settler with limited capital, while cattle ranching, on the other hand, requires larger areas of land and more capital to make it successful.

With most all of the settlers up and down the line, however, it is a question, at present, of marking time and looking forward, with eager expectancy, to the probable extension of the P.G.E.

Cliveden Graveyard Is Bit of Dominion

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Many Canadian ex-soldiers have vivid recollection of Cliveden, Lord and Lady Astor's pleasant place on the upper reaches of the Thames. In the wartime Cliveden became one of the largest hospital centres of the Canadian Red Cross, where thousands of Canadian soldiers, along with thousands serving in the Imperial Forces at large, received treatment. The coming of age of Lord Astor's son, William Astor, has just been celebrated at Cliveden.

The house stands high up above the River Thames, on a noble terrace, with a view through great trees to the reaches of the river between Maidenhead and Cookham. The banks are thickly clothed with trees of all kinds, and among them are yews several hundred years old. The house itself is comparatively modern, having been rebuilt in the eighteenth century, on the site of the old one.

Hidden among the cypresses and yews of Cliveden is a green, oval-shaped sanctuary, fashioned like an Italian garden. Here is the resting place of fifty officers and men of the Canadian forces, who entered on their last sleep at Cliveden. Among the monuments in this gracious little park for the departed is an exquisitely medieval carving of the Crucifixion. Opposite this, is a bronze figure of a woman, designed for the place by Bertram McKinnel, she stands with arms outstretched as if to welcome the souls of those laid below.

This beautiful graveyard has been given by Lord and Lady Astor in perpetuity to the Canadian Government. Here is a spot which will be forever Canada to her sons.

The Kirk session was over, and the minister and the leading elder were winding their way homewards down the dimly-lighted village main street. Opposite a door they saw a huddled form.

"It's MacIntyre, minister," said the leading elder. "I'm afraid he's been at the bottle again instead of attending the session."

"Dear me," said the minister, "why will men put an enemy in their mouths to steal away their brains? Let us help him into his house," he concluded.

So, together they lifted the helpless figure and staggered with him to the door of the MacIntyre household. In answer to the ring at the bell MacIntyre appeared—perfectly sober. "What's that ye've got wi' ye sir?" he asked.

"To tell the truth, Deacon MacIntyre," admitted the minister, "we thought it was you. It seems to me you've had a veritable narrow escape. Let it be a warning to ye!"—Harry Lauder.

Pacific Milk Entirely Western

Pacific Milk is owned and controlled entirely by British Columbia. Capital from the East has been the wedge always that has opened the West. Then, as it grows, the new country shifts gradually to its own foundations. As an industry whose origin was altogether British Columbia, Pacific Milk belongs to this new order.

Road enters the town. At present a ferry crosses the Fraser here but soon this will be a thing of the past, as the erection by the Government of the new bridge has just been commenced. I saw the first load of heavy timber delivered, with Mr. Leeming, the bridge engineer, from Victoria, superintending operations. This bridge will be a great boon to the people of Quenel and to those living on the other side of the river. Already evidences of a new era of prosperity are appearing here. Men are busy digging the foundations of a new building for the Royal Bank of Canada, and several new houses were to be seen.

A fine new hospital building has recently been erected, containing ten beds, with an up-to-date surgery, X-ray and operating room. The nurses, smart in their white uniforms, very obligingly show visitors over the hospital.

The Government offices occupy a fine two-story modern building, the ground floor occupied by the Agent, Mr. Lunn, and his staff. The Court House occupies the second floor, but it was empty and its door locked; let us hope this testifies to the good conduct of the inhabitants of Quenel, notwithstanding the beer parlors and the Government liquor store.

A visit was paid to Mr. Hutchcroft, the proprietor and editor of The Cariboo Observer, whose son was educated at University School, Victoria, and who has now joined his father in the business. This weekly journal has no competitor in a territory extending from Prince George to Ashcroft, a distance of some 300 miles.

To the credit of the people of Quenel and district, a splendid granite monument has been erected in memory of the heroes who fell in the Great War. I have noticed in several comparatively small country towns monuments thus erected, thereby testifying to the loyalty and patriotism of the people.

Some fine church buildings are here, too, the Church of England, Presbyterian and Roman Catholic denominations being represented. Speaking of churches, it is noticeable here and there along the P.G.E., the Indian rancheries, or reserves, have all erected in their midst the white-painted building, with the cross on top, of the Roman Catholic church. Several splendid hotels and stores are conspicuous in Quenel.

The large area of land under cultivation at different points is a surprise to the onlooker, considering the mountainous character of the country and the clearing that must have been done to commence with. Among the larger ranches are those of the Yorston brothers, owners of the Australian Ranch, near Quenel. Jack Yorston was a former member of the House for the Cariboo district. The Springfield Ranch, owned by Mr. Hargreaves, and the Douglas Ranch, near Soda Creek, are among the larger ranches. Their fields of grain, hay, alfalfa, etc. cover a large area, and in the month of August present a fine sight when hay and harvesting operations are in full swing, harvesting here being much later than at the Coast.

Referring to the editorial in The Colonist recently on sheep raising, quite a number of farmers in this country have sheep on their ranches but I cannot say that I have seen flocks in any great number, one reason being that coyotes, especially during the lambing season, devour quite a number.

FUTURE IN DOUBT

It is hard to say what the future of the country along the line of the P.G.E. is to be. The farmers say that at present the line begins nowhere and ends nowhere, and the high freight rates, the highest of any railway in Canada, militate against profitable farming. Until the railway is completed to Prince George, connecting with the Canadian National, farmers always will have difficulty in getting stock to the market. If the railway is not sold, it is fervently hoped, by those most interested that the new Government, under Dr. Tomin, will be able to get the line completed.

There is some talk of a pulp mill at Prince George being established. The magnificent forest country around there, where the immense growth of spruce, poplar, etc., would indicate that this would be a paying proposition, and thereby create an industry that would give employment to a great number.

There is no doubt abundant and various opportunities in the Cariboo country for many people. Sheep raising would be quite a profitable business for the small farmer, homesteader, or settler with limited capital, while cattle ranching, on the other hand, requires larger areas of land and more capital to make it successful.

With most all of the settlers up and down the line, however, it is a question, at present, of marking time and looking forward, with eager expectancy, to the probable extension of the P.G.E.

Mr. Gowan is also agent for the Marquis of Exeter and Lord Egerton of Tatton, who have just imported a trainload of several thousand sheep for their ranges at 108 and 111 Mile House.

Soda Creek is the most northerly point in the province where fruit trees can be successfully grown. I saw the remains of an apple orchard planted thirty years ago and still bearing fruit. Here, too, is one of the very few places where the flour mill is driven by waterpower.

Quenel, the present end of the line, is a town of no small importance, and has been ever since the early pioneer days. It is only sixty-four miles from Barkerville, famous in the early days of gold mining. Quenel stands on the banks of the Fraser River, where a splendid view of the coming of age of Lord Astor's son, William Astor, has just been celebrated at Cliveden.

The house stands high up above the River Thames, on a noble terrace, with a view through great trees to the reaches of the river between Maidenhead and Cookham. The banks are thickly clothed with trees of all kinds, and among them are yews several hundred years old. The house itself is comparatively modern, having been rebuilt in the eighteenth century, on the site of the old one.

Hidden among the cypresses and yews of Cliveden is a green, oval-

ATLANTA'S WIZARD OVERWHELMS PHIL PERKINS IN FINAL

Bobby Demonstrates That There Isn't an Amateur in the Universe Capable of Taking His Title Away From Him by Defeating the British Titleholder, 10-9

Jones Has Wonderful Record by Copping His Fourth Amateur Title

By WALTER HAGEN
British Open Golf Champion
American Professional Golf Champion
(Special to The Colonist and the North American Newspaper Alliance)
Copyright 1928, in all countries, by the North American Newspaper Alliance
BRAEBURN COUNTRY CLUB, WEST NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 15.—Bobby Jones is still the champion of the amateurs, and likely to remain so for some years to come, for at Minneapolis last year and at Braeburn this week it has been clearly demonstrated that there is no one in the world capable of taking his title away from him. Jones found Thomas Philip Perkins, the British amateur champion, way off his game in the final of the American championship today and knocked out an easy win at ten and nine. The match ended on the twenty-seventh green. It was the fourth time that Jones has won the amateur title, and this win, added to his two victories in the British open and his two wins in the American open gives him a most imposing record in big league competition golf.

WALTER HAGEN

Jones continued to play golf and he looked a winner from the start. It was unfortunate that Perkins did not play better, as the large gallery was keenly disappointed. Boston is one of the most astute golfing communities in the world. The people here appreciate keen competition. They were to see a close match of it in the final, but Perkins, who played so well on Friday, fell down when he faced the big gun of amateur golf.

Perkins won't away to a good start when he won the first hole in the morning. But his flare was short-lived, for after they halved the second and third holes, Perkins topped his tee shot at the fourth and lost the hole. He then lost the fifth, where he took a six, and the short sixth, when he dove into the creek, sank the ball in front and hit the next on top, the ball rolling back into the water.

From then on the match developed into an exhibition of how to do it by Jones and how not to do it by Perkins. Starting at the ninth hole, Jones won five in a row. He took the ninth with a birdie, five, the tenth with a birdie four, and the eleventh with a birdie three. At the short twelfth, Perkins hit his iron into the rough at the left of the green. Jones banged his iron and won with a par three. He likewise won the thirteenth with a par four and became seven up.

Perkins finished the morning round playing even, but in the afternoon he was back one hole, the short seveneenth, where once again he hit his tee shot on the green. Jones failed to hit the target at this hole and took a four. Jones had a score of seventy-two for the going. Perkins had an approximate eighty-one, picking up at the fourth and sixth holes.

In the afternoon Jones played the first nine in thirty-five against a forty-three by Perkins, and he lost four more holes.

DRAMATIC MOMENT
Reflecting on the championship, there was one great dramatic moment, and that came on Wednesday in the second eighteen-hole round, when Ray Gorton, the Braeburn club member, stood on the eighteenth tee all square with Jones, and the champion hit his tee shot wide and into an embankment, from which he could do nothing but play a short chip shot back into the fairway.

Jones had the honor at this hole, so he was in a bad predicament when Gorton stepped up to his ball. If ever opportunity presented itself to a golfer it was to Gorton at this hole. But he failed to keep his club head in the groove and hooked the ball far into the woods at the left. Had Gorton been able to deliver a perfect tee shot he might have grabbed the match and beaten the master player.

Although Perkins failed to produce his real game, it must be remembered that all week he played good golf and that he deserves great praise for working his way through his side of the draw and into the final, beating four of America's best amateurs. He defeated Don Moe of Portland, at the twenty-second hole after being down most of the way. He beat Arthur Yates 2 and 1; Johnny Dawson, 3 and 2; and George Voigt, 5 and 4.

Monarch of the Fairways

Jones, who was in the softest side of the draw, defeated J. W. Brown, 4 and 3; Gorton, 1 up in nineteen holes; Jock Beck, 14 and 13; Finlay, 13 and 12; and Perkins, 10 and 9. The first two were eighteen-hole matches, but once Jones got into the longer journey of thirty-six holes there was no holding him. He simply outclassed his opponents, who in turn seemed to wilt before him and fail to deliver anything like their normal game.

NORTHWESTERNERS GOOD
The delegation from the Pacific Northwest in qualifying three of the four players and with the fourth man getting into the play-off, made an excellent showing. These Northwesterners would be even more of a threat than they are if they could have more experience playing in the East in competition with the best players of this side of the Continent.

They are seldom able to make the long journey to the national championship, and when they do come on, feel as if they must "do or die" and therefore play under an added strain.

Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, lasted the longest of the Northwestern delegation, going to the fourth round. Don Moe, of Portland, is a seventeen-year-old and he had Perkins well in hand in the first eighteen-hole round, but let the Englishman slip out. With more experience, Moe will be a hard man to beat.

Perkins by going to the final vacated the trip of the British Walker Cup team to America.

A GREAT COURSE
The championship was played over a great course and was well conducted, the crowds being limited in good shape, so that all could see the putting.

As for the Eastern American players, George Voigt, the medalist, and Johnny Dawson won places for themselves among the select of amateur golf. Voigt was especially effective. He lost to Perkins on the best day of the British championship, but at Braeburn, Phillips Play, Harvard student, also gained fame by defeating Francis Oulmet and Harrison Johnston on his way to Jones.

The championship demonstrated that a golfer, to get very far, must have distance off the tee, all of the semi-finalists and practically all of the thirty-two who qualified being long hitters. Many good golfers, district and sectional champions, failed to qualify because they lacked the necessary distance off the tee and sufficient power to rap their second to the greens.

Jones has now tied Jerry Travers' mark of four wins in the amateur championship. He is certain to pass this mark if he stays with the game.

The most unfortunate player was George Von Elm, the only player who has beaten Jones in this championship. He is certain to pass this mark if he stays with the game.

Perkins finished the morning round playing even, but in the afternoon he was back one hole, the short seveneenth, where once again he hit his tee shot on the green. Jones failed to hit the target at this hole and took a four. Jones had a score of seventy-two for the going. Perkins had an approximate eighty-one, picking up at the fourth and sixth holes.

MARATHON SWIMMERS WILL TRY TO SWIM ST. LAWRENCE RIVER

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—The energies of any marathon swimmers who have any energy left, turn tomorrow toward conquering the St. Lawrence River for a stretch of thirty-nine miles, from Montreal to Sorel, Que. Forty-three swimmers, including the cream of the talent that failed to conquer the fifteen-mile crawl through Lake Ontario's icy waters, have entered the grudge. The favorite is Georges Michel, pudgy baker from Paris, France, and record holder for the English Channel swim, who lasted longest of all in the Toronto swim. A dozen women have entered the race.

LOSES HEARING IN BOAT

"Kid" Nemo, a colored light-heavyweight, had the ear drums of both ears broken in a recent contest in France with Frank Moran, not the old-time heavyweight fighter of Pittsburgh. He was disqualified for not obeying orders, and it was later found that he had lost his hearing.

LACROSSE CHANGES

When played by the Indians years ago, the goals in lacrosse were placed miles apart, now they are 110 yards from each other. Where once the field had practically no side boundaries it is now seventy yards.

Miss Wilson Wins Ladies' Canadian Open Golf Honors

QUEBEC, Sept. 15.—By defeating Miss Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, 5 up and 4 to play, in the 36-hole final on the Beconsfield Golf Club links, Miss Virginia Wilson, Owen Sound, Ont., is the women's Canadian open golf champion. She captured the crown let fall this week by Miss Helen Payson, of Portland. The deciding margin scored by the Chicago star came chiefly as a result of her brilliant golf in the morning when she shot an approximate 79 and led Miss Wattles at the end of the 18th, 6 up.

LACROSSE CHANGES

When played by the Indians years ago, the goals in lacrosse were placed miles apart, now they are 110 yards from each other. Where once the field had practically no side boundaries it is now seventy yards.

SISLER IS BACK

By Ripley

Sisler's back!

Hornaby knew something when he grabbed him from Washington as the last day of the season. Imagine a player of Sisler's calibre being waived out of the American League!

A series of misfortunes befell George just as he reached the peak of his game. He had hit over 400 and bid fair to advance into history as another Ty Cobb, when his eyes failed him. He was out of it for a season, and failed to reach his old standard when he returned. St. Louis let him go to Washington, where his worth was not appreciated.

of the high brand of golf these players produced. The Jasper Park Lodge course is admitted by the highest authorities to be one of the most difficult courses in the world. A mistake nearly always means the loss of at least one stroke and more often two. There were few mistakes in this match, and though he was weaker than usual with his putter, Bull did not win the game on his own. Hill played some beautiful mashie shots and his drives were generally ten yards further than those of his opponent.

MRS. ALLEN WINS
Mrs. K. C. Allen, St. Charles Country Club, Winnipeg, and former Manitoba champion, won the final of the ladies' championship from Miss Maud Smith, Toronto Golf Club, and runner-up in the year's Ontario championship, 4 and 2.

Like the Totem Pole final, this game produced the finest brand of golf ever displayed by women players on this course. Seven of the holes were completed in ladies' par figures. At the turn Miss Smith was one up and she held this advantage until the eleventh. They halved the short twelfth, but Mrs. Allen went into the lead and took the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth in a row and won the game on the sixteenth, when Miss Smith in a brave effort to reach the green, is trapped by an arm of Lac Beauvert, hooked into the green by her third.

In the second flight of the men's events, F. A. McCollum, Victoria, defeated A. J. Hills, Montreal, 5 and 4.

Clarence W. Jackson, Winnipeg, playing his fellow citizen, L. Saunders, won the final in the third flight, 6 and 4.

Honors in the fourth flight also went to Winnipeg, when G. E. Black, of that city, won from Dr. Harold Brown, Edmonton, 6 and 5.

His Honor Dr. William Egbert, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, continued to display the steady brand of golf which carried him into the finals of the fifth flight, and he disposed of his opponent, C. B. M. Allister, of Vancouver, 5 and 4. The prizes were presented this afternoon on the lawn in front of the clubhouse by His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Egbert.

SCIENCE MAY WORK CENTURIES IN VAIN
LONDON, Eng., Sept. 15. (United Press).—Science, beginning dimly to understand the meaning of life and death, may find itself working for centuries before it possesses any considerable knowledge or understanding of the great twin mysteries, Professor Frederick K. Donnan said in an article in The Evening Standard today.

"Perhaps no ultimate solution ever will be attained," said Professor Donnan. "No doubt the final answer to all our restless questioning lies in the pot of gold where the rainbow ends."

Professor Donnan was amplifying his recent speech before the British Association at Glasgow. There he had told of discoveries made by Professor A. V. Hill, of the origin and sustenance of life.

"With things standing like this, Boston got two men on base, but with two out. When Moore came up and hit a grounder down to Harris, who was playing first base that day, I looked like the third out. I had to cover the bag, but there was plenty of time to do it."

"I ran over and Harris tossed the ball to me. Just as I grabbed it, I slipped in the mud and fell."

"Even then, while Moore was safe, nobody should have scored. But in falling—just outside the bag—I paralyzed my right arm and I couldn't reach the ball. Both the base runners had gotten a running start and both of them scored."

"I had to stop pitching for the day. Boston had the lead, but Dawson went in and stopped them and we finally won out."

As Told by Big Leaguers

Talking Today

"BILL HARGRAVE": The Hit That Gave Me the Greatest Satisfaction.
CARMEN HILL: How Eddie Moore Pulled His Jinx on Me.
TED LYONS: George Connally's Clever Fielding With His Feet.

By J. P. GLASS
ILL Hargrave, the catcher, whom Manager George Moriarty of Detroit not so long ago put in the clean-up in the batting order although he was hitting under .270—for the simple reason that Harrison's grave is one of the most certain things in the business—says the most thrilling rally in which he ever took part wasn't in the majors, but in the minors.

Incidentally, he adds, his part in the rally gave him more satisfaction than anything he ever did.

"It was in 1922, while I was with Waterbury in the Eastern League," says Bill. "We won the pennant and then played Baltimore in a post-season series."

"That was a hot series. I got down to the point where we were all even with only one game to go. It was played at Waterbury. When Baltimore gathered in five runs, and Rube Parnham, pitching for Jack Dunn, shut us out for eight innings. It looked like we were done. You can never tell."

"In our turn at bat, with two out, we filled the bases. Then I came to bat and hit a home run out of the park, leaving us only one run behind. That upset Parnham some, I guess, for a single and two doubles followed, and the series was won."

"I believe there never was a more sensational ending to any series than that. I know that home run sure filled me with satisfaction."

HILL'S UNTIMELY SLIP
Carmen Hill, Pirate mainstay in the box in 1927, and one of Donnie Bush's sledge guns in the present pennant drive, considered Eddie Moore, who left Pittsburgh to go to Boston just about the time Hill was arriving, his worst batting jinx in his first season in the big league.

"Somehow," says Carmen, "Moore got plenty of hits off me, and often when they hurt. There were a couple of games last year when I couldn't get him out."

Just to illustrate how Eddie hoodwinked him, Hill describes the following incident which came up during a game last year. Says he:

"It was in Pittsburgh. There had been a heavy rain and the ground was muddy. Along in the seventh inning I seemed to have the game well in hand although it was close. The score, I think, was 2 to 1 in our favor."

"With things standing like this, Boston got two men on base, but with two out. When Moore came up and hit a grounder down to Harris, who was playing first base that day, I looked like the third out. I had to cover the bag, but there was plenty of time to do it."

"I ran over and Harris tossed the ball to me. Just as I grabbed it, I slipped in the mud and fell."

"Even then, while Moore was safe, nobody should have scored. But in falling—just outside the bag—I paralyzed my right arm and I couldn't reach the ball. Both the base runners had gotten a running start and both of them scored."

"I had to stop pitching for the day. Boston had the lead, but Dawson went in and stopped them and we finally won out."

Manchester Hands Everton Staggering Defeat—Huddersfield Turns and Gives Leeds Same Dose

RANGERS WIN 1-0 FROM HEARTS TEAM

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Supporters of the league champions, Everton, were today treated to the spectacle of seeing their club overwhelmed on their own grounds by 6 goals to 2 by Manchester City, who only came up from the Second Division this season. This was not the only staggering result in English First Division football today.

Huddersfield, who had performed indifferently this season, came to life with a bang and defeated Leeds United, who on their form so far had given critics the impression they were a great team, by 6 goals to 1. Another six goals was piled up by Derby County against the Wednesday, the latter only getting one marker in a surprising game.

Bury, playing at home, put a black mark on Burnley's fine record, while Leicester City whitewashed West Ham United by five goals.

Portsmouth, travelling to Blackburn with high hopes, went home with a score of four goals to nothing against them.

In Scotland, Hearts, playing on their own ground, were trimmed by Rangers in the feature match of the Scottish First Division fixtures. Rangers got the only tally registered.

Tommy Fielding Given Call Over Seattle Lad

Local Flash Easily Outpoints Johnny Woods, of Seattle, in Ten-Round Bout at Sons of Canada Hall

Tommy Fielding added another win to his record tonight when he won the judges' decision in ten rounds over the much-touted Johnny Woods, of Seattle, in a bout in which fast-stepping boxer was opposed by a seasoned fighter who relied on counter-punching in an effort to win the fight via the knockout route.

The Seattle fighter packed the heaviest wallop of the two, and it was evident from the start that the local boy proposed to fight cautiously and keep his chin out of the way of Woods' piling lefts and rights to the head. Fielding forced the fighting from the tap of the gong and landed at least two punches to one during the battle.

The first round did not produce much excitement for the fans, as both fighters were taking things easy. Fielding would jab with his left and shoot a few rights to the body and face. Woods let him go with one or two wicked left hooks which the local boy had no trouble in avoiding.

In the second round Woods connected with his first decent punch, a nasty left hook to the chin. The local boy carried the fight to his opponent in this round and landed frequently with lefts to the head and body. Woods stood flat-footed and counter-punched when the opportunity presented itself, but most of his wallop fanned the air.

Round 3 started with both fighters travelling at a faster clip. Fielding still bored in, shooting nice lefts to the head and left uppercuts to the plexus. The Seattle fighter landed a couple of his left hooks, which seemed to make the Seattle fighter act a little more cautiously in his last round.

In Round 4 the Seattle fighter let go more frequently with his right hand, and it looked as if he might connect and win with a K.O., as his punches packed dynamite. Fielding continued fighting a cool fight and stepped in and out with nice jabs to the Seattle man's head. The pair were doing little infighting.

Round 5—Woods swung his left hook when they met in the middle of the ring, but he failed to connect. Fielding shot a wicked straight right which landed on the point and sent Woods back on his heels. The fans shouted for the local boy to step in with another wallop, but the Seattle boy covered his jaw and all the local boy could do was to throw a few punches.

Woods was getting the range in this round with his right hand but he threw his punches in a chopping manner and they failed to land on a vital spot.

Round 6—Fielding stepped in with nice left hands which drew the claret. Woods tried hard with several hard rights and lefts to the body but most of them landed on the elbows of the local boy, who was blocking nicely. Fielding was still forcing the fight, with Woods still fighting flat-footed and apparently awaiting his time to land with a K.O. wallop.

Round 7—Woods shot terrific left and right swings to the head, but Fielding ducked them nicely and they fanned the air. Fielding connected again with several nice lefts to the head and had an edge in his infighting when he worked his left hand to the Seattle boy's stomach. Towards the end Woods connected with a beautiful right to the jaw, which made the local boy step away for a time.

Round 8—Fielding stepped out at the gong and shot several lefts to the head with a return. Woods connected with another hard right and missed with a left hook. Fielding connected with a nicely-timed left uppercut to the chin, which jolted Woods' head back. The Seattle boy was again bleeding from the number of straight lefts which Fielding was landing on his face.

Round 9—Woods missed with a right which looked like a sleep producer. Fielding still forced the fighting, with the Seattle boy counter-punching with hard lefts and rights to the head and body. The local boy was landing most, although it was apparent that the Seattle fighter's punches were more forceful. Towards the middle of the round Fielding connected with two nice rights to the jaw which packed lots of steam into them. The local boy was more impressive in this round than he had been all night and he was outboxing Woods quite handily. Woods tried time and again to land with his left and right swings, but most of them were blocked or fanned the air. At the end of the night he had just paid the last instalment on a small farm when the resator who sold it said: "Well, Uncle Joe, I will make you a deal to the farm now since it has been paid for."

"Boss," the old negro replied, "if I am all de same to you I had much rather you would give me a mortgage to the place."

The resator, somewhat surprised, said: "Uncle Joe, you don't seem to know the difference between a mortgage and a deed."

"Well, maybe not," said Uncle Joe reminiscently, "but I owned a small farm once to which I had a deed and de bank had a mortgage, and de bank got de farm."

British Columbia Enjoys Share in Upward Trend Of Dominion's Business

An upward trend in business has again been noticeable during the past month, mainly because the agriculture situation is favorable from the standpoint of production, but partly on account of preparations for the fall trade, which promises to equal that of any previous similar period and may be of record proportions, says the Monthly Commercial Letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The latter development has resulted in great activity in all branches of the industry except those affected by seasonal dullness or by worldwide over-expansion and the consequent intense struggle for markets. Production of steel is at this time above the level of former post-war years, although, as was expected, the output of rails has fallen off. Other kinds of material, however, continue to be produced in large volume, confirming the reports from our representatives that the metal trades are busy. Further slackening in the pulp and paper industry has occurred owing to a lessened demand for paper as in customary during the summer months, and to the commencement of operation of some new machines. The lumber mills, however, are working now the most important, have been active, overtime schedules having been put into effect in some cases to fill orders. It is hoped, however, that production will not be increased beyond demand, a situation which would bring about a return of the unsatisfactory conditions which, until a few months ago, prevailed over a period of four years. The mining of metals continues on a larger scale than a year ago owing to the mining of greater tonnages by some companies, to reduced costs which permit of the treatment of increased quantities of low-grade ore and to firmer markets.

The salmon pack on the Pacific Coast is reported as about 1,000,000 cases, more than double that of this time last year, though the increase is almost entirely in pinkies. Sockeye fishing has ended with less than a normal pack. The pack of all varieties in Alaska is estimated at 5,840,000 cases, somewhat larger than in 1927, and it is believed that the Japanese canners have also enjoyed a favorable season so far as production is concerned. The opening prices recently announced were slightly higher than those of a year ago, and it is hoped that the maintenance of the operations of the Canadian canners, whose position was strengthened a few months ago by consolidation of some companies and a reduction in gear, should be fairly profitable. While the results of summer fishing on the Atlantic Coast will not be known for some time, early reports are favorable and the markets are still strong.

SOME APPREHENSION
The sharp decline in wheat prices has caused disappointment and possibly some apprehension as to the outlook for business during the next year in the western provinces, where the farmers' purchasing power is the all-important factor. There are, however, certain factors that seem to have been overlooked by some traders. The crop of new wheat in the Northern Hemisphere will be larger than in the preceding year and, if growing conditions continue favorable in the two principal producing countries of the Southern Hemisphere, Argentina and Australia, the world crop will probably be considerably larger. At present it is possible to discuss in a definite way the crops of only certain areas, Europe, the United States and Canada. In the first-mentioned, the total yield is estimated as slightly higher than in 1927 and the quality of this year's crop is regarded as better, which would have the effect of an increased supply. However, in all but one of the large importing countries, Italy, the crops are smaller than in 1927 and it is reasonable to assume that purchases, because of reduced crops and generally improved economic conditions, will be of greater volume than in any previous season. Furthermore, there is likely to be a substantial reduction in the European crops of rye and potatoes, which, especially rye, are used as substitutes for wheat in some parts of Europe. The yield of wheat in the United States has been officially estimated at 891,000,000 bushels, about 20,000,000 bushels higher than in 1927 and well above the average, but the increase over last year will be partly offset by the lower quality of the greater part of the kind of wheat grown for export. There should also be taken into consideration that about 80,000,000 bushels of the American crop is durum wheat, which is not suitable for bread-making, while at least 25,000,000 bushels of this type have been grown in Canada, making over 100,000,000 bushels that might well be deducted from the North American crops when importing countries consider the sources of supplies of bread grains. The carry-over of old wheat has been regarded as a depressing factor but it appears that too much weight has been given to it, for on July 1 the stocks in the principal exporting countries and in the United Kingdom and least were estimated as only 20,000,000 bushels larger than on the same date in 1927. There has since been an exceptionally heavy movement of Canadian wheat and, therefore, the world carry-over does not seem to present a problem. A five per cent increase in acreage is reported from Argentina, but the above-average temperatures have accelerated the growth so that it is more susceptible to damage from frost. The Australian crop has been favored with moderate precipitation and temperature, and has made a good start over an area which, according to private reports, is 1,500,000 acres in excess of last year.

To sum up, it appears that every indication favorable to the production of the world's crop has been utilized to the full. It is not the market and, indeed, that the importance of some of these indications has been overstressed. At present it can be assumed that prices will be lower than in the 1927-28 season, but the trend during the last two months should not be taken as neighbors do not concern or effect having definitely established the average level during the current season. So far as lower prices

Camera Tells Tale of Hard Life in Arctic

THE above pictures convey an impression of life in the Arctic. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are compelled to stand the hardships to preserve law and order. Inspector Wilcox, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, has just returned to Ottawa after seven years on and off in the cold regions and brought back the pictures. His place has been taken by Inspector Joy. The layout: No. 1, the seal catch drawn out on the ice—the dogs stay in the background; No. 2, Inspector Wilcox dressed for the long patrol; No. 3, a polar bear shot by Inspector Wilcox, with two tiny cubs; No. 4, an Eskimo mother and child; No. 5, Inspector Wilcox.

Warm, dry weather during the first two weeks in August was favorable to the development of the western grain crops. Wheat reached the ripening stage without damage from rust and generally in excellent condition, the first samples showing a high protein content. Coarse grains also made rapid progress. Under such favorable maturing conditions cutting started in Manitoba in the second week of the month and, spreading westward, was fairly general by the third week. Since then harvesting has been interrupted by wet weather, and frosts have also been experienced in many districts. The effects of which cannot be determined until threshing is completed, though they are not thought to be serious in the case of late sown grains. Further damage from severe hailstorms is also reported, but only of a local character. Threshing is under way in some districts and should be general during the first part of September.

Agricultural conditions have continued to be favorable in British Columbia and have improved in the Eastern Provinces, especially in Ontario, though rotting of root crops in many fields has rendered these beyond recovery. Harvesting of field crops is being completed under good weather conditions.

The volume of credit available and the general level of interest rates exert a profound influence on the economic situation, and at no time in the history of Canada have these factors been of greater importance. The demand for bank credit in Canada has steadily increased as a result of the financing of an abnormal grain movement during the Spring and Summer, exceptional business activity in all lines, and the difficulty in floating Government, municipal and other securities in New York because of high money rates and a congested bond market there. Bank loans, on June 30, the date of the latest bank statement, were about $265,000,000 higher than on the same date in 1927. For this reason and also because of the approaching movement of the crops, which promise to be the largest ever harvested, the responsibilities of the banks in providing adequate funds and preserving financial stability are the heaviest that they have yet been called upon to bear. Accordingly, this bank recently made an analysis of the situation, from which it appears that Canadian banks must furnish in the aggregate as much as $200,000,000 for the movement of the western wheat crop alone, a sum exceeding probably by $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 that required in any preceding season. It is safe to say that the financial resources of the country, largely held in trust by its banks, are equal to the great strain to which they will be subjected, but for some time it has been apparent that the banks would have to conserve their credit resources so as adequately to finance the movement of the crops without curtailing the volume of credit for other commercial purposes or causing violent fluctuations in interest rates, which would adversely affect not only the country's trade but sound business as well. It is also safe to say that this policy of the banks ensures the continuance of one of the principal and most important features in the grain trade—that the farmer may either receive in cash, if he so desires, payment for his wheat when it is delivered at a country elevator (the funds to be obtained passing into circulation and thus stimulating trade and industry) or, if he prefers, deposit the grain tickets to the credit of his bank account (the sum so saved adding to the volume of funds available for use in furthering the progress of the country). Moreover, the danger of a credit stringency is removed by the fact that the banks can always rediscount approved commercial paper or borrow against securities with the Minister of Finance under the provisions of the Finance Act, and the Treasury Board quite recently facilitated this method of obtaining funds by lowering its rediscount rate. Financing of this character, however, is in the nature of temporary and exceptional accommodation rather than a means of recourse in the first instance or as a permanent arrangement, and it cannot be expected that easy money conditions will prevail until returns are received from the sale of a large part of the wheat crop.

OUTSIDE CONDITIONS
Other countries, notably the United States and Great Britain, have witnessed developments affecting their credit resources which require the attention of their financial leaders and are of interest to Canada and all other nations dependent upon foreign markets. As may be generally known, the Federal Reserve Board of the United States adopted the policy of low interest rates about a year ago with a view to helping certain countries to draw gold from the large stock in the United States and so to stabilize their monetary systems. This object was achieved, as was also that of increasing exports from the United States, but an unexpected development was the very large increase in loans for speculative purposes as the result of the cheapness of money. Loans of this class continued to rise for several months until they reached the point where their volume caused fear as to the effect on the whole credit structure. The Federal Reserve authorities, having accomplished the exportation of gold and desiring to curb speculation, raised their interest rates and otherwise caused a tightening of money and a consequent liquidation of speculative loans. This liquidation did not, however, go as far as was expected, first, because of a congested bond market and, later, when this obstacle was removed, by a recovery in stocks and an inflow of funds into the call loan market, chiefly from banks outside New York and corporations with large cash reserves. At present an expansion in business is in sight which, together with the approach of the crop-moving period, is causing a great demand for commercial loans. Fears are expressed of higher money rates with the unfavorable effect these would have on business. It is the case, however, that while interest rates on commercial paper have risen, money for business purposes is obtainable at less cost than for speculation or for bond investments. Any further increase in rates would probably seriously affect the security market and trade and industry generally, and result in large imports of gold. None of these developments is desired and, while it is believed that a firm money market will continue for some months, it is also thought that except for temporary fluctuations the present rates will be retained.

The London money market has been in a sensitive state owing to considerably lower rates than in New York and to monetary developments elsewhere. The rate of exchange on New York has recently been at a point permitting the shipment of gold by fast boats, but efforts are being made to prevent such a movement by pegging money rates and by carefully regulating the market.

MARKETS AND PRICES
So important a part do grains play in Canadian economy that, in spite of fairly stabilized markets for other commodities, index numbers of wholesale prices has fallen from 95.66 to 91.78, reflecting the drastic decline in price of the two principal grains, wheat and oats. The market for cattle and beef continues firm, stimulated by the good prices prevailing in the United States, and all indications point to a strong demand for some time. Prices of hog and pork products continued their advance in spite of a seasonal falling off in domestic consumption and a moderate slaughter rate. The British bacon market remains firm. Prices of dairy products rarely show much change at this season as heavier production prevents any marked advance and the demand for storage purposes absorbs the surplus which would otherwise cause a decline, and butter and cheese, therefore, remain unchanged, with a steady demand from abroad for the latter product.

The past month has witnessed considerable fluctuation in the cotton market, owing to the diversity of opinion regarding the probable yield in the United States. The Government estimates the crop at 14,251,000 bales as indicated by a condition of 67.9% of normal, but owing to the heavy acreage, light boll weevil damage and fairly satisfactory weather conditions there is a widespread feeling that the Government report was underestimated and that the output may be 15,000,000 bales. The fact that the crop is late, however, renders it still liable to damage, particularly from frost. Quotations as at August 15 had declined from those at July 15. The cotton market is weaker tendency in the wool market attributable to lack of demand rather than prospects of future burdensome stocks. The silk and rayon markets remain unchanged. The lumber market has improved but the overproduction in the paper industry with the resulting severe competition holds newpaper prices at depressed levels. Rubber prices have fluctuated within narrow limits and are slightly lower than a month ago. The tin and raven markets remain unchanged. The authorities place on the recent census of rubber stocks in Ceylon is that the accumulation as shown is negligible.

There was again a slight drop in sugar prices but a firmer tone is now apparent due to some apprehension felt for the European beet crop, which has suffered considerably from drought.

The metal markets appeared to have become stabilized, temporarily at least, which, in view of the present moderate demand, speaks well for the efforts of the copper, lead and zinc industries to bring production more in line with consumption. Recent statistics for tin showed the world's visible supply as the largest in several months, but this was offset by record-breaking consumption and the price remains firm.

Little Britain, near Smith's Bay, owes its name to the fact that the Duke of Bretagne, the province of France we now call Brittany, and here a magnificent palace. In Stuart times it was famous for its second-hand bookshops, and it was while browsing amongst them that the Earl of Dorset lighted upon the copy of an unknown work entitled "Paradise Lost," which the bookseller implored him to help dispose of, "as there was no sale for them, and they cluttered up his shop."

The Earl bought a copy and was so struck with some of the passages that he sent it to Dryden, who returned it with the memorable opinion: "This man Milton cuts us all out, and the ancients, too."

It Heats the Whole House

Read How This New Heater, Installed on the Ground Floor, Will Give You Cosy Furnace Comfort All Through the House—It CIRCULATES the Heat

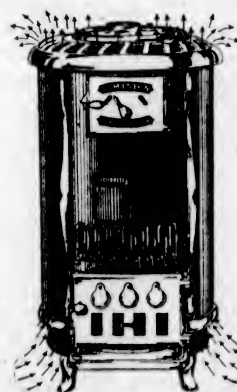

Its Secret Is CIRCULATION

Stoves heat by radiation—they scorch your face while your back is chilly. But this new Circulator heats by circulation like a true warm-air furnace. It keeps warm air in constant, uniform circulation in every room. More than 10,000 cubic feet of air pass through the Miracle Circulator every hour. Far corners of the house are as cosy as the room in which the Circulator stands.

Safe Anywhere in the House

Install the Circulator anywhere in the house and it is safe. The enamelled steel casing around the heater protects walls and furniture even in closest proximity; there is no danger of setting fire to nearby inflammable objects and the steel jacket also protects children from injury.

Compact, well proportioned, handsomely designed and finished in enameled steel and nickel-plate, it is quite in keeping with appointments and furnishings of the nicest home. All nickel-plating is applied on a copper base to insure permanency, non-chipping and lasting brilliancy that never dulls.

A Furnace—Without "Furnace" Work

It saves the cost of installing a warm-air furnace with its network of pipes. Expensive cellar excavation work and house adjustments are eliminated. No stair-running and cellar groping to regulate drafts and dampers, put on fuel and remove ashes. The Dominion Circulator is a real furnace, yet it occupies less space than a kitchen range. It can be installed anywhere in a downstairs room. It generates and distributes more heat for fuel it burns than any other stove made.

Built for Good, Long Service

Because this perfected new type heater is thoroughly sound in principle, and because it is made of finest, heaviest materials, it will give exceptional service for years. Though new in its principle of heating by constant air circulation, it is neither a novelty nor an experiment, but a severely tested, practical heating machine guaranteed by one of the largest, best equipped stove manufacturers in Canada. The "Miracle" or "Dominion" Circulator is guaranteed to surpass any coal or wood heater made, in heating efficiency, fuel economy and convenience.

Heats 4 to 7 Rooms Like a Full-Powered Furnace

Lowers Coal Bills

It does the work of a warm air basement furnace but burns no more fuel than an ordinary stove. And it burns any kind of coal—also wood—with equal satisfaction and economy.

Keeps Every Corner of the House Cosy

Because it heats by circulation like a real furnace—not by radiation like a stove—this new heater keeps every part of the house uniformly warm and cheerful. It heats upstairs and down.

Ends Old-Fashioned Stove and Cellar-Furnace Bother

The Dominion Circulator banishes stove bother and discomfort and gives you full-powered furnace warmth, but without the inconvenience and expense of a cellar furnace. It may be installed in any room on the ground floor of the house and may be placed close to walls and furniture without damaging their finish.

Salient Points of the Bidding

South, holding a hand of more than ordinary strength, with distributed values, bids one No Trump.

West, with the required top strength and both Majors well fortified, doubles informatively.

North passing, East responds with his long suit, Diamonds. South doubles two Diamonds to show rebid strength, regardless of the fact that West had already made an informative double. West bids his Hearts over South's double. North bids three Clubs, despite the intervening bid, because holding greater strength than South could reasonably expect.

Trick 1—Dealer goes up with Dummy's Ace of Hearts, to lead trumps and then if possible effect the immediate establishment of Dummy's Diamonds.

Trick 5—As West's Jack of Diamonds fell on the previous trick, Dealer plays the eight from

Dummy, and West's King, followed by Dummy's two remaining Diamonds are good.

Tricks 8 and 9—Dealer, playing

Dummy's winning Diamonds, secures two Spade discards and makes game on the hand.

Only a blind opening of Spades could have saved game at the Club

bid. Dealer then making four odd instead of five. At No Trump, the best defensive play would have

North-South to two odd, one trick short of game.

CHESS NEWS AND NOTES

The F.I.D.E.—The difficult question of control of matches for the championship of the world was postponed by the International Federation, who appointed a committee to study the question further.

Those appointed to serve were: Sir

George Thomas, Dr. A. Rueb, pre-stein a grand master in his youth, but now a barrister in Paris, P.

Vincent (France), A. Robinson

whether such a committee can serve any useful purpose for, however the result of their deliberations may be, there is no power in the hands of the Federation, at present, to enforce a decision on the players most concerned. And as Dr.

Alechin has a place on this committee why not Capablanca or Dr.

Laszlo? We are entirely in agreement with a policy of working with the master players on this question, but feel equally strongly that a lasting settlement is more probable if the masters are called in to ad-

Oriental Home School Cares for Orphans and Needy Oriental Girls

Nearly Forty Receive Motherly Care and Instruction From Miss Martin and Helpers—Fine Results Shown—In Early History Home Was Refuge From Chinese Highbinders

Dr. Victoria Chung and Nurse Agnes Chan Received Training in This City

THE thirty or more Chinese and Japanese children and girls, who have been suffering for the past two months at Cordova Bay, under the care of Miss Martin and her helpers, have returned to the Oriental Home School on Cormorant Street, healthy and merry, their olive-tinted faces tinged with a ruddiness painted by wind and sun and sea. The completion in July last by Miss Martin of twenty-one years of service in the home, of which she has been superintendent since 1920, calls attention to the philanthropic work of this Christian social and educational centre for the needy Oriental child.

The Oriental Home School is at 732 Cormorant Street, and is a spacious and well-appointed building erected in 1908 by the Methodist Church. Mrs. Snyder being at that time in charge. Adequate facilities for the enterprise in hand are provided by fine dormitory and dining-room accommodation for over forty inmates, a day school where twenty children are taught according to the public school curriculum, and also, as an annex, a roomy and sunny kindergarten to which come daily about forty black-eyed little tots from neighboring Oriental homes.

OPENED AS REFUGE
As early as 1887, at the instigation of Dr. Starr, at that time pastor of Metropolitan Church, the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church began to extend motherly aid to needy Chinese girls. Many a sordid and heart-compelling story was told by those who ran—often stumbling in their distress—up the steps to find refuge and rescue in the arms of the brave and benevolent guardians of the home. There were many dangers in those days for Chinese girls, and there were many difficulties for those who would protect them. Local police and friendly lawyers were often called upon in legal fights against mercurial and vindictive Chinese engaged in the exorbitant traffic of exploiting Chinatown's girlhood.

Conditions have bettered in later years. Chinese immigration has lessened. The practice of domestic slavery is about extinct. The influence of the Christian Oriental population, consequent upon the prolonged work of the Chinese and Japanese missions of the various churches, has had a wholesome effect. The present inmates of the home are now largely orphans or the children of parents who do not for one reason or another provide for their little ones. Of the thirty-six at present under the roof, twenty-eight are under eleven years of age.

PUPILS HAVE DONE WELL
The members of the staff point with justifiable pride to the two women's mission societies and the two mission bands composed largely of former pupils of the home and of the Sunday school on Fisgard Street. Several of the graduates, too, have taken training as nurses. Dr. Victoria Chung, a native daughter of Victoria, now doing splendid work in Kong Moon Hospital, China, took part of her preparatory in the home, although her later training was sponsored by the Presbyterian Church. Another notable pupil is Miss Agnes Chan, now at Fashan Hospital in China, who during the recent troubles took charge of the nurses in the absence of the English supervisors. Many women now happily married look back with grati-

Christendom the World Over

Though the immense assemblies attendant upon the twenty-ninth Eucharistic Congress, which closed last Sunday in Sydney, N.S.W., did not equal those of the last congress, which was held at Chicago, the enthusiasm and impressiveness, according to reliable dispatches, must have fully equalled those of any preceding gathering. Bishop O'Donnell, of this city, is reported to have said that "the unforgettable scenes in many respects surpassed the congress at Chicago." Vast crowds of men, women and children assembled for their respective celebrations of the mass. The water procession, six miles across the harbor, led by a white vessel in which the sacred elements were carried, was the most spectacular event of the week, and caught the imagination of the three-quarter million of on-lookers. Other interesting occasions were the service held in the cathedral near which, 110 years ago, in a blacksmith's hut and in secrecy and fear, the services of the church were first held; and also the unexpected outburst of the crowd of men in singing "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow" in honor of Cardinal Coretti, the papal delegate, as he retired from the enormous men's celebration in the show ground. On children's day a book containing a register of millions of prayers offered by Anglican Catholics for the success of the congress, was presented by Bishop Dunn, of New York, for transmission to the Pope.

VULGATE BEING REVISED
Appropos of the Eucharistic Congress may be mentioned the progress of the revised version of the Latin Vulgate of Jerome, which is the standard translation of the Scriptures in use by the Roman Catholic Church. Jerome made his translation at the end of the fourth century, and by the seventh century it was in general use. After many revisions at various times, the Clementine edition, prepared under studied the subject thoroughly. Every man ought to. Now, take my advice and look into the matter. You will find that you will agree with me."

General Wallace says: "I went from this interview embarrassed and mortified. I had not felt competent to discuss such an important matter with such a learned thinker. I made up my mind that I would never place myself in such an embarrassing position again. I plunged into study, reading every authority available. After years of study, instead of agreeing with the great agnostic, I wrote 'Ben Hur.' It is my reply to him."

CANADIAN CHURCH NEWS
Just past his eighty-fifth birthday, Mr. Isaac Hurd recently told the United Church Sunday School in Mitchell, Ont., that he was celebrating his fifty-sixth anniversary as secretary of the school, and that in attending Sunday school conventions he had traveled more than 30,000 miles.

The most northerly hospital in the British Empire is that of the Church of England at Aklavik, which is some 120 miles north of the Arctic Circle. Archdeacon Fleming, "the Archdeacon of the Arctic," writes of the very great service this outpost house of mercy is giving in the Northland, specially mentioning the assistance rendered during a recent attack of influenza. All Saints' Hospital is the gift of Colonel and Mrs. Leonard, of St. Catharines.

A mountain turn under the shadow of Mount Rundle, at Banff, Alberta, was the picturesque natural setting for the impressive open air service conducted on a recent Sunday morning by Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon in connection with the second annual Banff Highland gathering and Scottish Music Festival.

The congregation, numbering more than 2,000, assembled on the grassy pine-shaded slope overlooking the small lake, where the preacher took his place on a rough-hewn log raft. The Scottish Choir, of Calgary, led the musical part of the service, which included the Covenanter's psalms. Following the flowers, a Scottish piper played "Flowers of the Forest."

LORD HALDANE'S TESTIMONY
Dr. Archibald Fleming, the noted London Presbyterian divine, writes to The Times of his visit some weeks ago with the late Lord Haldane.

"We spoke of 'what next?' He was sure that there would be a 'next,' though its conditions and categories were wrapped in mystery. And so we came to the Pauline metaphysics, and especially the immortal resurrection promise—to every seed his own body—the machinery that we use here worn out, exhausted, scrapped, but new, fresh, readapted machinery given, ready to be expressive of the soul in the new conditions and environment. It was the Christian faith in the philosopher's terms. Then, good-bye, for each of us knew, 'I shall give you my blessing, if you will give me yours,' I said. 'Yes, let us have the exchange of blessing,' he answered, with a happy smile. And with this never-to-be-forgotten benediction, I went forth. And he faded on."

Jane—"Because I want to."

CHAPTER XVII

What did Silent Martha mean? That riddle was one which Maisie must discover for herself.

Fo Chung to be disobeyed? If so—if so—Maisie crept to the window after the woman had gone and looked out. Her fear was almost unreasonable, the mere sight of it thrilled her with terror. Within that place murder—and a dead Nemesis—had stalked. A woman's cry of anguish haunted the once prosperous mill.

And Martha had told her to let Fo Chung do his worst. Murray himself had asked her to trust the woman.

Could Murray and Bernard really be near? An exquisite sense of relief warmed her. Murray was near. She would obey implicitly.

The mill downstairs to breakfast revolving in her mind what she was to do. In the hall she met Gladish. He nodded.

"Hello," said he. "No peace for some folk. You're lucky, Maisie. If you knew it. Snug and tight in this little place with old Martha's Al cooking to keep your cheery while I've got to go South again. Special business appointment. No—it's no business of yours, excepting that it has put old Fo in the devil's own temper. Sing him into a calmer state, my dear. If I see Pa again I'll give him your love, eh? You're just the pattern daughter but like all patterns you sin't appreciated. Pa was out out for a bachelor. He don't understand—daughters."

Maisie did not reply. What is the use of asking questions which you know will not be answered. Maisie had the common sense not to ask.

It was a clearer day with intervals of sunshine. Fo Chung hardly stirred from the kitchen. He did not seem to want Silent Martha to talk to her young companion.

Maisie, after much puzzlement and a very natural reluctance, went upstairs, put on her hat and coat, and coming very softly downstairs unlocked the front door and went out.

The sunshine had faded, scared no doubt by wintry scowls, but it was perfectly clear.

If only it had been foggy how much better it would have been. But the moorland track was wide, and when the mill building hid her she had a straight run for the village. And Murray was near.

Laughing softly, Maisie ran down the path and out onto the moor. Free! She had passed the mill, and turned on the side of the slope to look back. Her heart seemed to stand still.

Fo Chung was in pursuit. Panic overcame Maisie. She forgot that she was only carrying out the orders of a secret ally. She forgot that a lover must be close at hand. Flight from the dread pursuer was all that mattered.

She ran on as she had never run before. Had the river been near she would have flung herself into it. Any fate was better than what the Chinaman had in store for her.

But those other fates remained untried. Fo Chung, with a peculiar cry of triumph, leaped forward and grasped her arm. To wrench herself free was impossible though Maisie fought in a delirium of fear. For the man's expression was terrible. He did not speak, but he dragged her step by step—back to the mill.

Maisie shrieked aloud. "Not there! For—pity—not in there!"

He had no pity. He had never known the meaning of the word when he stood in the secret vaults of many a Lama monastery and pronounced the words of a doom too fearful for civilized ears to hear.

The mill was beginning to fall. Shadows and the mysterious pall of evening crept over a cold and hushed world.

"No!" shrieked Maisie. "Not the mill."

But it was the mill which must be her destination. With a sudden relentless thrust Fo Chung hurled her back into the interior of the building. Maisie fell, and in falling struck against the ladder communicating with the loft above. Down rattled the rotten structure, falling around like a showering of dead bones, echoed too by the heavy hanging of the outer door of the mill.

Scrape went the bolts. She was locked in.

At first Maisie was too dazed and shaken to understand what had happened. She lay inert till at last the rising gale of the wind told her its was going to be a wild night. Creak, creak and groan. It might have been a regiment of ghosts—but after all it was only the arms of the mill, complaining that in old age the wind could not catch their decrepit woodwork and whirl them about to a merry chant.

Maisie stood up, shaking the debris from her. Above, she had a second's view of the black hole which yawned there.

The mill loomed—belonged to the dead—not to the living.

"I can't stay here," murmured Maisie to herself. "I won't stay here. It—must all be a plot. I—I should not have trusted Martha. What can have happened to Murray?"

She flung herself against the heavy door which creaked and complained but did not move. Ah, she dared not stay here. Would no one pity her?

Pitifully she beat against the woodwork, but the sense of impotence only increased her terror. Presently she sank down, half unconscious, exhausted.

Why had Martha bidden her disobey Fo Chung?

Darkness crept on swiftly in this place.

Maisie, rousing presently, peered into the darkness. She was sure she had heard a step.

"I won't think of ghosts," she whispered, and forced her thoughts to home, to Murray, to Bernard. She clutched Murray's note. Had it been a forgery?

But the thoughts would not remain caged in captivity to certain subjects. Against her will she was remembering the tragedy of Margaretson's Mill. The awful struggle up there in the loft—the woman—opening the lid of the bin, the shrieking anguish—the falling figure—the silence which must have brought the sweat of remorse to the murderer's brow.

Then, every muscle became rigid. She was sure something had fallen from the loft above to the ground. Something light which rustled, falling with soft little thuds. She was alone in the mill.

Could Fo Chung have climbed to the loft door outside by ladder? Was he creeping upon her softly from the loft itself? He would easily have swung down by a rope.

And if he came at midnight thus it was to murder her.

Maisie rose to her knees, peering into the darkness, her lips and throat were dry. She dared not attempt to escape. She could imagine how Fo Chung's eyes glittered in mockery and hate, she could imagine the lean yellow arms upraised holding the deadly kris. She was sure that presently she should feel those pounding fingers on her wrist. It was beyond her control to keep complete silence. A faint moan escaped her.

The unseen human being whom she felt sure was crawling in search of her instantly proclaimed his presence.

"Maisie," cried a voice, pent with emotion.

It was the voice of Murray Malterton.

At first Maisie felt a sickening sensation of faintness overcome her. Knowledge of the present crisis slipped from her. It needed a supreme effort to bring it back. But she succeeded.

"Murray," she whispered.

"Thank Heaven!"

Though Murray spoke the listener caught the echo of another voice choked by angrily suppressed sobs. Murray and Bernard were both here.

A long beam of light pierced the darkness. It was from an electric torch.

Murray groined as the white beam showed him the wan, pinched face of his bonnie sweetheart. Maisie

Church and Stage

Growing amity between the church and the stage in England is unmistakable. The Actors' Church Union, of which the Bishop of Wilkesden is chairman, seeks to win from the church, recognition of the dignity of the dramatic profession, and also to welcome touring actors and actresses at the towns they visit and help to meet their needs.

A growing number of the actors are said to look upon their art as a sacred profession and realize the dignity of the "ministry of recreation."

At St. John the Evangelist Church, Notting Hill, well-known actors, including Lewis Casson and Robert Lorraine, have read the lessons during the Lenten services on Sundays.

The vicar explains that he took this step because he wanted the congregation to hear the Bible read at the best.

In consequence of the growing movement for presenting sacred plays and tableaux in churches, the Bishop of Southwark has formed a committee, consisting of the Bishop of Kingston, Canon Down, Rev. Percy Dearmer and Mr. Ben Greet (actor), to advise whether a play is one which they can recommend to the bishop as suitable for presentation in church.

American Methodists

The Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States in 1926 had 26,130 church organizations, with a membership of 4,080,777, as compared with 26,215 churches and 3,717,785 members in 1916, according to figures for that denomination made public by the Department of Commerce.

The Department also announced that there were in the United States 18,096 churches of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1926, with 19,184 churches and 2,114,473 members reported in 1916.

These figures show a gain of 736, 207 members for the two churches in ten years. Adding federated churches, the total number of churches becomes 26,325 and the total Methodist Episcopal membership 4,094,638.

The total expenditures for 1926, as reported by 25,790 Methodist Episcopal Churches, amounted to $86,222,307, including $68,949,285 for current expenses and improvements, $20,462,262 for benevolence and missions and $10,760,760 not classified. The total expenditures reported by 26,321 churches in 1916 were $43,983,681.

A Bit of English History

Revising a bit of ancient English history, a pageant was given at Warkworth Castle recently in which King Ceowulf was shown dedicating the site of the Church of St. Lawrence in A.D. 730. Ceowulf was King of Northumbria from 720 to 737, when he resigned to become a monk of Lindisfarne. From that time onwards the monks were allowed to drink beer and wine instead of milk and water. But Ceowulf is better known for the fact that Bede dedicated to him his famous Ecclesiastical History.

Theosophical Society

A public meeting of the Victoria Independent Theosophical Society will be held at 8 o'clock on Monday evening in the Jones Building, Port Street. The subject under consideration will be "The Object of the Theosophical Movement." Open discussion is invited.

On Tuesday, August 7, the Lord Bishop of Keewatin ceremonially laid a foundation corner block in connection with the erection of the new St. John's Church at York Factory. The Hudson Bay factor and the local Indian chief joined in the ceremony by driving spikes in the logs of which the church will be built.

Students Who Explored Prairie North

UNDER the leadership of John B. Fuller, a party of four Iowa State University students, who for months have been exploring the far northern districts in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, returned to The Pas, Man., recently. They were in the best of health and emphatically denied reports broadcast some time ago from Lac Du Brochet, a little Hudson Bay post far north of The Pas, that they ever had been lost or had suffered privation through lack of necessary equipment to traverse the trails and streams of the northland. Fuller and two of his companions, Peder C. Boddum and Gordon C. Armstrong, are returning to their homes in Iowa, while the fourth member of the party, Max J. Kane, will stay in the north, having accepted employment with a Dominion survey party. In the above picture the expedition is shown in northern costume.

Investments Abroad and Importation of Luxuries Are Signs of Prosperity

The measure of the prosperity of a country is the well being of its individual citizens, says the monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada. In the case of the individual, prosperity is measured by increase in capital or capital goods and improvement in his standard of living, which correspond in the case of the country to investment of surplus funds abroad, new construction and increasing consumption. In Canada, the volume of new construction is greater than ever before, larger even than during the peak years before the war. Investments abroad are growing rapidly, and an analysis of imports shows a steadily increasing demand for comforts and luxuries for all classes of society.

During a period of expansion in agriculture, mining or manufacture, it is usual for a country to increase its foreign indebtedness by a large proportion of the amount expended in the new capital outlay in the industries affected. This was true in both the United States and Canada at the time when the railway systems of the two countries were under construction. The accumulated wealth of Canada is now sufficient, however, so that the present programme of expansion is being largely financed from within, and in spite of large capital expenditures in developing new industries, Canada is producing a greater volume of wealth than is being expended within the country and is, therefore, beginning to accumulate securities from abroad.

MONEY GOING ABROAD
At the beginning of 1927, Canada's investments abroad amounted to $1,300,000,000, an amount approximately one-quarter as large as the $3,500,000,000 of foreign investments in Canada. Of the total Canadian investment abroad, $620,000,000 was accumulated in the years 1923 to 1926 inclusive. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates that during 1927 the Canadian public absorbed $50,000,000 of new foreign bond issues and repurchased $12,000,000 worth of Canadian public securities from British holders.

When the value of the commodities exported exceeds the value of the commodities imported, when tourist expenditure in Canada exceeds Canadian tourist expenditure abroad, and when the total of such incoming payments and others, such as those for interest, insurance and debt, are more than expenditures, it is inevitable that the balance sheet of Canada's international trade should show a net credit balance. When all the visible and invisible items are totaled, we find that the net balance in favor of Canada in 1923 amounted to $45,000,000; in 1924, to $108,000,000; in 1925, to $277,000,000, and in 1926, to $191,000,000. Previous to 1923, there was a period when Canada's imports of capital exceeded exports, owing to the repayment of funds advanced to Great Britain during the war.

REGAINS CONTROL

This export of capital has served to permit Canada to regain the control of a number of her own industries where control had previously been held abroad. As examples of this movement, we may note particularly the securities of Goodyear Tires, Windsor Hotel, Hiram Walker Distillery, Acadia Sugar, Canadian Bronze, Cosmos Imperial Mills, National Steel Car, Lake Superior Corporation, Provincial Paper and Noranda Mines. The same trend is apparent in relation to the United States are jointly offered to the Canadian public by Canadian underwriters.

Construction is at once the effect and cause of business activity—at the same time an index of development and a semi-permanent form of saving. The present large volume of construction undertaken and projected is a tangible evidence of accumulated wealth within the country. Its geographical distribution is such as to warrant the belief that all parts of the country are sharing in this prosperity. Approximately 4,500 miles of railway line are to be constructed or improved during the next two years, and these will open up such new agricultural and industrial areas as the Peace River district or that of Lake St. John.

LIVING STANDARD HIGHER

The high standard of living and consuming power, the third index of prosperity, is reflected in the accompanying table of imports, including Oriental carpets, silks and rayons, perfume and jewelry—typical luxury products. The total value of the imports of these products increased from $25,000,000 in 1923 to $34,000,000 in 1926; $40,000,000 in 1927; and $42,000,000 in 1928.

An increase of seventy-six per cent in the volume of petroleum imports between 1923 and 1928 is related to the increasing use of the automobile, that sine qua non of modern civilization. Canadian per capita registration of automobiles is second only to that of the United States. The new sales of automobiles (production plus imports, minus exports) increased in value from $56,000,000 in 1924 to $71,000,000 in 1925; $101,000,000 in 1926; and $105,000,000 in 1927. The increase is most marked in the more expensive cars.

In 1926 the total value of the radios manufactured in Canada amounted to $6,000,000; in 1927 the total was increased to $8,750,000. Between 1924 and 1928 the value of the imports of the new artificial refrigerating devices had increased from $10,000 to $393,000. The value of the washing machines imported also doubled between 1923 and 1928.

FARMERS STEPPING OUT

The farmers' imports of farm machinery doubled from 1925 to 1926, and increased by approximately 50 per cent each year in 1927 and 1928. In this connection it should be remembered that Canada is one of the largest producers of agricultural implements, the production in 1925 aggregating $25,000,000 in value. The ownership of an increased amount of agricultural machinery represents a true increase in the capital goods of the country. Until 1907 crops were a decisive factor in Canadian business depression. The crises of 1894, 1900 and 1907 were all accompanied by complete or partial crop failures. The recession of 1913-14 occurred in spite of good harvests in 1911, 1912 and 1913. General world depression, financial overconfidence in Canada, an unjustified programme of railway expansion and real estate inflation put too great a strain on the public and private finances of the country. After 1914 war demands maintained agricultural and industrial activity until 1920, and then came the world depression, when low prices for foodstuffs made large crops a liability rather than an asset. Such a review indicates that agriculture is of such relative importance in Canada that there can be no true prosperity amidst agricultural depression.

After the consideration of those factors, which have been responsible for previous periods of depression in Canada, one is forced to the conclusion that in spite of the temporary tightness in the money situation the country is in a fundamentally sound condition and may look forward to a continued improvement in the general standard of living, to a continued increase in Canadian capital goods and to the steady inflow of Canadian securities held abroad.

Newspaper Mergers Under Discussion

LONDON, Sept. 12.—"We may think what we like about newspaper amalgamations, but it is generally agreed to say that expansion of business has usually followed, with the inevitable increase, rather than a decrease, in employment. So far as salaries are concerned, too, I think there has been a slight improvement, which grows in relation to the importance of the positions occupied."

The foregoing remarks were made by Ralph Blumenfeld, editor of The London Daily Express, in his presidential address to the Institute of Journalists' convention at Dublin. "So far as megaphoned opinion from London headquarters is concerned," continued Mr. Blumenfeld, "I feel that wise direction on the part of multiple owners will convince them that provincial newspapers cannot, and will not, be edited from a palace in Fleet Street, and that so much latitude must be allowed to the editor on the spot that, if for no other reason than that of good business, the sense of individuality will not be sacrificed."

Mr. Blumenfeld did not believe there was the slightest ground for fears that the development of the radio, with its news-carrying possibilities, would lead to the wireless paper industry. "On the contrary," he added, "I believe that the broadcasting of news will simply serve to increase the demand for newspapers."

For three solid hours the captain had been lecturing his men on "the duties of a soldier," and he thought it was time to see how much they had understood of his discourse. Casting his eyes round the company, he fixed on Private Green.

"Private Green," he asked, "why should a soldier be ready to die for his country?"

The man scratched his head for a moment, and then a smile of enlightenment crossed his face.

"Yes, sir," he said, "you're quite right. Why should he?"
